STROLL IN THE SUNSHINE

What better way to spend a crisp fall morning than a stroll in the sunshine? That's exactly what J. E. Salmon, of Westbank, was thinking today as he walked hand-in-hand with his grandchildren, Karen and Eddie Gallant, aged five and six, of Toronto. Ideal autumn walking weather is predicted for the Central Okanagan area for Thursday, and with luck, through the weekend. (Courier photo)

Protestant Leader Escapes Assassination In Belfast

BELFAST (CP) — Protestant leader William Craig escaped assassination today when three shots struck his car while he was driving through the outskirts of Belfast. He was not hurt.

Police said all three bullets hit Craig's car near Lisburn, where the British army has its Northern Ireland headquarters. He was on his way to his law office in Lurgan.

The assassin escaped in another car.

Craig, 48, heads the Ulster Vanguard Movement which claims it can command a private army of 200,000 men. He is one of the most powerful leaders of the million-strong Protestant community in Northern Ireland.

Vanguard is linked to the para-military Ulster Defence Association and the Loyalist Association of Workers.

The Provisional wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army has said that members of both of these groups are "legitimate targets" for IRA gunmen.

It was the second assassination attempt on a prominent Protestant this year. Last February, IRA gunmen wounded John Taylor, who succeeded Craig as home affairs minister in Ulster's Protestant-dominated government.

"We understand the shots came from a car which raced past," said Vanguard secretary Louis Gardner.

Army and police units immediately began a massive search for the attacker.

Police said one bullet penetrated the car trunk and lodged in the rear seat. The other two hit a side of the vehicle.

Craig told police the car was driven by a man. A woman was in a passenger seat, he said.

It was the third attempt on Craig's life. His home was hit by a gasoline bomb in 1968. The following year his children found a bomb in their garden.

China Charges Arms Pact 'Beginning Of A New Stage'

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — China charged Tuesday that the new Soviet-United States arms agreement will not lead to a lessening in international tensions but instead toward "the beginning of a new stage" in the nuclear arms race.

Chinese Deputy Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hau told the General Assembly the agreement, which formally went into force only hours before he spoke, "are being blown up as tremendous achievements on the road on reducing the threat of nuclear war."

But Chiao said the pact between the two super-powers will have little meaning for the rest of the world.

"These agreements only stipulate some limitation on the quality of certain categories of nuclear weapons in the possession of the Soviet Union and the United States, but impose no limitation at all on their quantity," Chiao said. "Nor do they mention a single word about the destruction of nuclear weapons."

"How can this be described as reducing the threat of nuclear war? We hold that no fond illusion should be cherished about these agreements," Chiao was the last of the Big Five foreign ministers to address the assembly's general debate.

Much of his 5,000-word speech was devoted to sharp criticisms of the Soviet Union for its policy on disarmament, the Middle East and other matters.

He lashed out at the Russian proposal for the "non-use of force" in international relations as a hoax designed to give the Soviet Union "a free hand to carry out its nuclear threat and nuclear blackmail against countries with few or no nuclear weapons."

"The Service Corps, a new para-military offshoot of Vanguard, attended the rally and a spokesman said they were ready for armed action."

3,300 Strike At Two Plants

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty-three hundred employees of Massey-Ferguson Industries Ltd. here and in Brantford, Ont., went on strike at noon today to back demands for higher wages in a new working agreement.

The employees, members of the United Auto Workers, voted 97 per cent in favor of strike action Sept. 17 if their bargaining committee was unable to reach agreement on a union demand for a 12-per-cent across-the-board wage increase as well as an improved pension plan.

A company spokesman said that the monetary issue is the only outstanding matter and that negotiations will continue Thursday morning.

Turner Trial Is Postponed

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Circuit Court Judge William A. Patterson, citing a circus-like atmosphere "calculated to influence and intimidate jurors," today postponed until Monday the trial of tycoon Glen W. Turner, accused of violating the state's securities laws.

The 38-year-old millionaire and two of his business associates face 46 counts of violating Florida's securities law in sales of Dave to the Great, a motivational program.

Train Movements To Be Checked

VANCOUVER (CP) — Federal Labor Minister Martin O'Connell said Thursday he doesn't know whether anyone is "monkeying around with" the movement of grain trains, as alleged last week, but he will look into the situation of slow deliveries to elevators here.

Salmon Ruling Unsatisfactory

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jack Nichol, secretary treasurer of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, said today reducing the United States share of salmon bound for the Fraser River to 25 per cent of the total catch may not be enough of a reduction.

He was commenting on a statement Tuesday by Environment Minister Jack Davis that Canada will renegotiate the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Treaty with a view to ending the 50-50 split of the catch—possibly cutting the U.S. fishermen's share to 25 per cent.

Mr. Nichol said: "Basically, we don't want to agree with 25 per cent because nobody has determined whether that is an acceptable figure—it may be way out of line."

Returns to U.S. fishermen have been "fantastically out of proportion" to what the U.S. has put into the fishery, Mr. Nichol said.

"We certainly take the position that U.S. interception of Canadian-bred salmon should be halted," he said.

Mr. Nichol said the union would like to see the U.S. catch of such fish reduced as far as possible toward zero.

Mr. Davis had conceded that Canadian trollers operating off the west coast of Vancouver Island have cut into returns of U.S. hatchery-reared stock and said a new agreement on overall sharing could limit the Canadian troller catch.

But the principle is that salmon destined for the rivers of one country should be caught by fishermen of that country, he said.

S. W. Dickens, president of the British Columbia Deep Sea Fishermen's Union, said he could not see how Mr. Davis would limit the troller catch.

Education Meeting Begins

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Officials from colleges and universities across Canada today began a three-day conference here to discuss means of extending the influence of Canadian education abroad.

Sponsor of the conference is the Canadian Bureau for International Education, a 20-year-old Ottawa-based organization which is supported by institutions of higher learning and provincial ministries of education.

Among guests at the conference will be George Ignatieff of Toronto, former Canadian ambassador to the United Nations in New York and now provost-elect at the University of Toronto.

Jack McNeil of Hamilton, Ontario's new minister of colleges and universities, will make the keynote speech Thursday night.

Jill Stocker, of Ottawa, the bureau's executive assistant, said the organization's aim "is to encourage the movement of people for education."

"We're basically an information agency and research centre for encouraging overseas people to come to Canada for work, study and travel," said Miss Stocker.

Will Not Consider Projects For More Than $200,000

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey said today that $125 million placed at his department's disposal to be divided between two continued government programs will put more emphasis on job creation and on-the-job training.

Mr. Mackasey said $85 million will be used to support Local Initiative Programs, and $40 million will pay for on-the-job training. Both amounts were announced earlier.

Last year, the initial amounts provided to the two programs totalled $120 million, with $100 million to L.I.P. and the remainder to the training program.

The cutback from $100 million to $85 million for the L.I.P. plan was nominal, Mr. Mackasey said at a news conference.

"On-the-job training is now a permanent feature of manpower, while L.I.P. at best is an ad hoc program."

L.I.P. program and the federal on-the-job training plan would be financed by funds "equal to the initial amount we started with for the two programs last year."

L.I.P. received $100 million last year and the on-the-job plan $20 million initially in 1971.

Last week Mr. Mackasey said an on-the-job training program would receive $40 million this winter.

Last year L.I.P. began with $100 million and was expanded later with $50 million last January, $30 million in May and $15 million in September.

The $15 million in September was to allow 750 projects to be carried over until the end of November.

Mr. Mackasey said in a news release today that decisions for the new L.I.P. applications will be Dec. 31, 1972. Application forms and detailed criteria by which plans will be evaluated are available at Canada manpower centres.

He said the projects carried over from last year will be given no special preference when applications open Dec. 1 and must compete on the same basis as new schemes.

Projects receiving money will have to hire unemployed persons through manpower centres and show that they are willing to take persons on unemployment insurance or social assistance.

Amin Denies Expulsion Date Of Asians Has Been Changed

KAMPALA, Uganda (CP) — President Idi Amin denied today he told Zaire's President Mobutu he will extend the deadline for the expulsion of Uganda's non-citizen Asians.

He also announced he is calling off a tripartite summit conference due to have taken place in Bukavu, eastern Zaire, Oct. 27. It was to have been attended by Amin, Mobutu and Rwanda's President Gregoire Kayibanda.

In a statement broadcast by the government radio, Amin said the Nov. 8 deadline has not been changed and he has "no intention whatsoever of extending it."

He said he had told Mobutu he would send a telegram to UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, explaining among other things that the safety of Asians here was assured, but added "no one should be deceived" that the deadline has been changed. He had never at any time said he would change it, he said.

Amin said he was calling off the Bukavu summit on the advice of Uganda's defence council, the top armed forces body, "because of the situation now prevailing in Uganda."

He said he was "busy commanding the armed forces as there is a threat of an invasion of Uganda by Britain, India, Tanzania, Rwanda, Zambia and two other countries." He did not expect to travel outside Uganda until next year, he added.

Saigon Area U.S. Target For Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — More than 20 U.S. B-52 bombers attacked North Vietnamese and Viet Cong positions in the Saigon region today in efforts to foil plans for attacks on the South Vietnamese capital.

But over North Vietnam, the heaviest of typhoon Lorna sharply curtailed U.S. air operations, military sources said.

The sources said the controversial F-111 swing-wing fighter-bombers remained out of combat after one of the jets mysteriously vanished with two men aboard Thursday night.

The last combat mission flown by the all-weather F-111s was Friday, the sources said, since then they have been flying only training and evaluation missions over Thailand.

Typhoon Lorna crossed the North Vietnamese coast near Vinh, 145 miles above the demilitarized zone, shortly after midnight Tuesday night.

Explosion Rips Empty Factory

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion, which authorities said possibly was the work of an arsonist, demolished an abandoned factory and an adjoining three-story tenement in Brooklyn today, setting fires in surrounding buildings and hurling debris for blocks.

At least 18 persons were injured. One was in hospital.

The blast ripped through the upper floor of the old factory building and levelled the adjoining tenement.

About 155 persons were left homeless by the blast, the Red Cross said.

Time Limit Date Is Set

Any program that continues past May 31, 1973, must show it has financial aid from other sources. Projects beyond that date "however worthy" cannot be considered, Mr. Mackasey said.

Large construction projects with total costs more than $500,000 will not be eligible. Maximum wages will be $100 a week per person, and an operating expense of up to $17 a week per person will be permitted.

The minimum size project will be one that provides at least 15 man-months of employment.

Applications from municipalities must have the approval of their provincial governments. Mr. Mackasey said his department would seek co-operation with the provinces and insist projects affecting objectives and priorities of other governments will be subject to inter-governmental consultation.

L.I.P. requires work to begin within two weeks of the government approval of an application and the program is primarily to create employment during the winter months.

The government has given no indication if winter-works programs will be renewed. Last year the government had a program including $160 million for labor costs in municipal public works, $90 million in federal housing and sewage projects, and $15 million for job retraining.

Tons Of Drugs Found On Ship

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuters) — The United States freighter Mormacraft was unloaded completely Wednesday after international narcotics agents located a large quantity of drugs aboard.

Police said the haul could reach two to three tons but shipping sources here claim it was closer to one ton.

An executive spokesman for the vessel's shipping company, Moore-MacCormack, said the ship was boarded Tuesday night, minutes before it raised anchor for New York.

Under the on-the-job training program, companies receive grants or tax credits covering 75 per cent of payroll costs of

ON CAMPAIGN TRAIL

Jobs, Recreation Main Topics

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The first priorities of a Conservative government would be to create more jobs and to do away with the planned three-per-cent hike in personal income taxes scheduled for Jan. 1, Robert Stanfield said Tuesday in Toronto.

Prime Minister Trudeau, campaigning for votes in Quebec, told a Shawinigan audience that residents of the St. Maurice valley area will "lose their breath" over a recreation program to be announced prior to the Oct. 30 federal election.

In Toronto New Democratic Leader David Lewis told a caller on a CHIN open-line radio show Canada is not becoming a republic under the Trudeau government.

And on a free-time CBC-TV political show, Social Credit Leader Iteal Carmichael dismissed as nonsense talk that the party is dead because of provincial election losses in Alberta and British Columbia.

Mr. Stanfield, in an interview taped for showing over Toronto's CITY-TV, also said use of the Canadian army might be justified to cope with emergencies arising from strikes in essential services.

Free collective bargaining was important but there came a time when the public interest must prevail, he declared.

The prime minister spoke to about 1,500 enthusiastic supporters in a Shawinigan high school auditorium where Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien was nominated without opposition.

The government, he said, would have "goodies, candies to announce in the next week or two."

"I guarantee it will leave you breathless," he said.

Earlier in Trois-Rivieres Mr. Trudeau repeated that he would vote to continue the five-year ban on capital punishment for most murders. The ban expires at the end of the year.

Mr. Lewis, who also appeared last Tuesday on a French-language open-line radio show in Montreal, said it was meaningless to discuss the monarchy and its relation to Canada.

"What difference does it make if some people want to remove the royal or dominion?" he asked.

There were more important issues in the election than the monarchy, said Mr. Lewis.

EASY IMPRESSION

Mr. Caouette, who campaigned in Lachute, Que., Tuesday, said on his taped television appearance that it was easy to get the impression that there were only three major political parties running in the election—the Liberals, the Conservatives and NDP.

But for the first time, Social Credit would have more than 200 candidates in the running, representing all provinces.

No one suggested that the Liberals were dead because they lost New Brunswick, he said. Nor was the same said when the Conservatives lost Nova Scotia.

Mr. Trudeau's breath-taking surprise for St. Maurice voters could be one of the several major announcements predicted in Ottawa by Liberal sources.

They are expected to include a policy statement on Canada-U.S. affairs promised by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and today's announcement from Manpower Minister Bryce Mackasey on an expanded Local Initiatives Program.

Also in Ottawa the Conservatives released two policy papers on international trade and Canada-U.S. relations.

The Conservative paper proposed establishment of a joint economic commission by both countries to keep each informed on mutual economic matters.

NDP Wants To Know SC Leader

Premier Dave Barrett said Tuesday night he has asked Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall to ask each of the 10 Social Credit members of the next British Columbia legislature to tell him who their leader is. The premier said plans for the legislative session opening Oct. 17 are complicated because the governing New Democratic Party has no idea who will be leading the opposition. Mr. Barrett said he knows former premier W. A. C. Bennett will not be on hand when the session opens, but said he has had no communication from Mr. Bennett since the NDP cabinet was sworn in following the Aug. 30 election. Mr. Bennett was re-elected in Okanagan South, but said later that he will resign the seat. Mr. Barrett also said he has no plans to try and match Mr. Bennett's 20-year reign as premier. He said he hopes to lead the NDP through two more elections and then ask the party to find another leader.

Two members of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation have agreed to drop a lawsuit against the federation's political action levy, it was announced Tuesday. Byron Barker of Victoria and Esther Hall of New Westminster filed suit in the B.C. Supreme Court last June to halt the collection and spending of a levy of one day's pay on each of the federation's 23,500 members. They obtained an interim injunction freezing the levy funds. The levy money was to have been used for political action aimed at defeating the Social Credit government in the Aug. 30 provincial election. After the injunction was granted, a Teachers' Political Action Committee was set up to collect and distribute voluntary contributions from teachers and others.

Owen Shlime, a vice-chairman of the Ontario Labor Relations Board, was appointed Tuesday as chairman of a three-member conciliation board established to help resolve a contract dispute between the Council of Postal Unions and the government. The union nominee of the board is William Walsh, a labor consultant from Hamilton, and the government representative is Bruce Stewart, a Toronto lawyer.

Environment Minister Jack Davis said Tuesday Canada will renegotiate the international Pacific salmon fisheries treaty with a view to increasing Canadian fishermen's share of international waters to the Fraser River. United States and Canadian fishermen now have a 50-50 split in the fish, but Mr. Davis said in an interview the renegotiation—to begin as soon as possible—would aim at cutting the U.S. fishermen's share to possibly 25 per cent.

What is nudity and is it offensive? The Supreme Court of Canada decided Tuesday to look into those two points of law. Its decision might mean the downfall of G-strings and pasties across the country. The issue was brought before the court when a lawyer for Kelly John Leboe, a Calgary stripper, asked the court for leave to appeal the woman's conviction last December for an immoral night-club performance. The Alberta Court of Appeal has upheld the conviction, ruling that her total public nudity was, by its very nature, an "immoral, indecent or obscene performance." In granting leave for the Supreme Court appeal, Mr. Justice Ronald Marland said the court will decide whether "nudity in a public place without lawful excuse is a breach of moral standards in Canada."

A professor from Texas A and M University said Tuesday nuclear power generation is not as cheap or safe as it was once thought to be. Prof. Earl Cook, dean of geography and geology and a guest lecturer in a University of Victoria energy crisis forum, said in an interview he favors a cautious approach to nuclear power. "Nuclear technology is still developing—let the United States make the mistakes first. Coal power can last another 100 years," Mr. Cook advised. "Even if we develop an efficient breeder (a plant which makes maximum use of uranium resources) there are still chronic waste hazards to be dealt with," Mr. Cook said.

Quebec Vice-Premier Gerald Levesque said Tuesday that France and Canada intend to set up experimental exchanges via the regular commercial communications satellite system. Levesque, winding up a five-day visit in Paris which has included talks with President Georges Pompidou, Prime Minister Pierre Messmer and several ministers, said he had not discussed the Franco-Quebec satellite communication projects.

Rhodesian government banned David Steel, British Liberal party chief whip, from re-entering Rhodesia today. The banning order was served on Steel at Salisbury airport where he was waiting for an aircraft to take him to Zambia after a two-day visit to Rhodesia. After he was served with the banning order—which is permanent—Steel had his briefcase searched by Rhodesian officials. Three documents were photo-copied and returned to him.

Disciplinary charges will be laid against a Toronto undertaker under the Embalmers and Funeral Directors' Act of using inadequate procedures in the burial of unclaimed bodies, the Metropolitan Toronto council was told Tuesday. Donald Stenson, registrar of the board of administration under the act, said no similar disciplinary action has been taken in Ontario for at least 15 years. He said the charges deal with the material used in the coffin and the way the burial was performed. John Anderson, social services commissioner for Metro, said the charges deal with Type A funerals, for which the $177 cost is equally shared by the provincial and municipal governments. They provide burial in a one-inch-thick silk-lined pine box with grey covering and without service or flowers. Type A funerals are usually provided when the deceased has no money and his body is unclaimed.

SEXIST TEXT BOOKS
VANCOUVER (CP)—The Status of Women Council of British Columbia will ask Education Minister Eileen Daily to get rid of school text books which discourage girls from entering the working world. Council president Joan Wallace said Tuesday the request is contained in the council's brief on education which will be sent to Mrs. Daily. "Right from kindergarten through elementary school our text books depict women almost exclusively as homemakers," she said.

BURIAL DEBATE
VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver city council debated for more than an hour Tuesday before finally deciding who should bury the city's indigents. Vancouver area funeral homes were finally given the nod. Bids had been called for earlier this year. The city is to handle the disposal of about 350 penniless persons who died every year in the city.

TRIP TO RUSSIA
VANCOUVER (CP)—Three members of the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union will leave Oct. 20 for a 10-12 day visit to the Soviet Union. Union secretary-treasurer Jack Nichol and general executive members Elgin Neish of Victoria and Norma Jones of Prince Rupert will make the trip at the invitation of the Soviet Foodworkers Union.

DAYCARE INCREASE
VICTORIA (CP)—Rehabilitation Minister Norm Levl announced Tuesday that the provincial government is increasing its maximum payments to private day care centres. The increase, retroactive to Sept. 1, will bring the government's cost share to $80 a month for each child, an increase of $10 per child. The announcement affects about 300 children in 48 centres.

Britain's Labor Opposition Has Demands For ECM Entry

BLACKPOOL, England (AP)—The Opposition Labor party today bound a future Labor government to seek sweeping new terms for Britain's continued membership in the European Common Market.

But the demands were so tough that it seemed immediately clear they would stand little chance of acceptance by existing members of the trade and economic bloc.

The decision at the party's annual convention represented a triumph for former prime minister Harold Wilson who long has argued for Britain's entry as long as the conditions are deemed right.

But it was a hairline triumph barely won because in a dramatic vote Wilson and his fellow-leaders only just defeated a resolution that would have committed the Labor movement to a declaration of "complete opposition to entry into the Common Market on any terms."

This call was voted down by 3,076,00 to 2,958,000—or a margin of a mere 118,000 in a party that has a registered membership of 6.3 million.

B.C. LOTTERY IS ASSURED

VICTORIA (CP)—Premier Dave Barrett said Tuesday night British Columbia will have a provincial lottery as soon as the new New Democratic Party government gets around to organizing it.

The premier, speaking on an open-line program on New Westminster radio station CKNW, said a provincial lottery would be introduced "as soon as we can have a good go."

"But we've got an awful lot of legislation on our plate at this point... I don't want to give a specific date and disappoint anybody," Mr. Barrett said.

BICYCLE SAFETY BLITZ

RCMP Constable Wayne Young, right, demonstrates the appropriate positions in which luminous tape should be applied to a bicycle fender, while looking on are representatives attending a meeting Tuesday to formulate plans for an upcoming bicycle safety project by the Kelowna Lions Club. At left is Jim Pare of CKOV, middle is Daryl Tarves, Lions Club second vice-president and standing at right is Gayle Garrison of Kelowna Teen Town. A bike safety blitz, sponsored jointly by the Kelowna, Winfield, Rutland, Westbank, Peachland and Oyama Lions Clubs, will be held Oct. 13, 14 and 15. Added support will come from the RCMP, Teen Town, the Kelowna and District Safety Council and School District 23 (Central Okanagan).

Social Planning Group Wants Public To Know

Jim Gordon, first vice-president of Central Okanagan Social Planning Council, said Tuesday he wanted the public to know there's help from the planning council for community growth.

Mr. Gordon's comments arose at the group's monthly meeting during discussion on the problem the planning council is facing about the lack of awareness the public has about the council.

Since the council was formed by a group of interested citizens in 1968, it has been involved with many surveys and briefs and has acted as projects or supported such projects as Meals on Wheels, services for transient youth and low cost housing.

The object of the council is to improve community life in the Central Okanagan through activities. At its regular monthly meeting, the council reviewed many of the projects they were involved in since January, bringing the projects up to date.

The council is in the process of securing funds for the directory a community services, a directory listing resources in the fields of recreation, education, health and welfare services. The updating task was undertaken by the University Women's Club at the request of the council.

The council will obtain a final report of the Kelowna Hostel Service on the operation of the hostel during the summer. KHS was verbally endorsed by the council and was offered support from them.

Day Care Society was formed after the social planning council made a survey to determine the need for such a service. Presently, the day care centre is having problems finding a building to use, and it is hoped the social planning council will be able to assist it, come way.

The social planning council also undertook the task about six months ago to assess information on low cost housing, under Gordon Hartley, a member of the council and an architect.

Mr. Hartley said he obtained his information from such corporations as Central Mortgage and Housing (CMHC). The information obtained will be gathered into a booklet, simplified for the public. It is presently at the stage of simplification and gathering information.

Mr. Hartley said the rough draft may be completed in the next few weeks, and will be presented to CMHC for approval. The final form is hoped to be completed in November or December.

Charter Flight Held At Coast

Two Central Okanagan residents were aboard a Dornier charter flight to the United Kingdom which was cancelled minutes before it was to leave Vancouver Monday.

A department of transport inspector ruled that more than half the 189 passengers aboard failed to qualify under charter flight regulations.

It was learned today that both the local people were delayed only one day and arrangements were made to have them flown to London aboard an Air Canada flight.

With returns still coming in, the office of the local Community Chest campaign reports more than $9,799 since the drive began Sept. 20. Tentative figure for both residential blitz nights Monday and Tuesday, about $4,000 in bank receipts only, and does not represent a firm figure since results are changing hour-by-hour.

A reception for visiting Prime Minister Trudeau has been scheduled at Rutland Centennial Hall, Oct. 14. On hand to greet the guest of honor will be Okanagan-Boundary MP, Bruce Howard, and federal fisheries minister, Jack Davis. The prime minister is expected to arrive at Kelowna airport around noon.

Housing starts in Kelowna for August were up to 105, bringing the total for 1972 to 1,010. Completions for the same period total 102 with 902 for the year to Aug. 31.

IN COURT

Two Fort McMurray, Alberta, youths, 17-year-old Douglas Joseph Trembley and 17-year-old John Peter Grant were formally charged in provincial court with the theft of a pleasure boat from Westbank, B.C., and value exceeding $200. The two will appear Thursday for plea.

Garnet Lea Ledger, formerly of Thunder Bay, Ontario, was committed for trial on charges of breaking and entering and arson arising from a July 5 fire and break-in at Central elementary school. No date for trial was set.

SEEN and HEARD

Eight groups and individuals are the recipients of $1,859 worth of British Columbia cultural fund scholarships, the Kelowna and District Arts Council has disclosed.

Amounts of $500 each have been awarded to the Kelowna Art Exhibit Society and toward summer travelling scholarships for worthy students attending the summer school of arts, Lesser sums include $360 to the Okanagan Valley Music Festival Association, $150 each to the Kelowna Community Theatre, and the Pacific Salt Jazz Sextet, also presented by the society Oct. 26 at the same location.

A jazz workshop is expected to be held at Kelowna Secondary School, in addition to two young people's concerts at 9:30 and 10:30 a.m. on that date at the Community Theatre.

Other events worth noting include the Okanagan-Mainline Regional Arts Council's juried craft show at Cariboo College, Oct. 14 to 18, and the Okanagan Valley jury show in the Orchard Park Mall Nov. 16 to 18. Entries from artists and craftsmen in the latter must be in the mail by Nov. 14.

Summer art scholarship winners listed by KADAC were: Heather Favall, flute; Celeste Bromek, violin; Sharon Parker, ballet; Ann McLelland, bassoon; Diana Schlatter, flute and Alan Lorne, violin.

Independent Will Campaign If A Byelection Is Called

A former Kelowna probation officer, Joe Lobb, said Tuesday he will contest a South Okanagan byelection as an independent candidate if and when such an election is called.

Mr. Lobb, 37, said he will actively campaign for the post although his campaign is likely to be of a less serious nature than that of others who may run.

"How can you be serious about our society," he asked? "You would be in tears all the time." A former newspaper reporter and magazine editor, Mr. Lobb said the voters can only elect a backbencher or a gadfly, "so I'm offering my services as either one."

Now teaching and working with the Kelowna Resource Centre, Mr. Lobb built and lives in a log cabin in hills near Kelowna along with his wife, Rosie.

He said he is running as an independent because he feels the party system is becoming obsolete. "Everybody should look out for themselves including the voters and if they did there would be no parties."

And he said he doesn't feel the voters of the South Okanagan will sit still for any carping during the next election.

He was referring to the rumored possibility that former attorney-general Les Peterson might contest the South Okanagan riding for Social Credit, along with provincial Conservative leader Derril Warren.

The present M.L.A. for Okanagan South and premier until the NDP upset in the last election, W. A. C. Bennett, has said he will not attend the next session of the legislature and that he would support Mr. Peterson as an independent Social leader.

... an opportunist

He did not, however, give any date for when he would resign or indicate that this would take place in the near future.

Mr. Bennett polled a total of 12,026 votes in the Aug. 30 election followed by NDP Frank Snowball with 5,964, Liberal Roger Tait with 3,871 and Conservative Jim Doak with 2,179.

Both Mr. Tait and Mr. Snowball said they would accept the respective nomination of their parties if a byelection is called. Mr. Doak would not surmise on the situation but said he had heard of no definite plans to bring in Mr. Warren.

"I'm an opportunist," said Mr. Lobb, "if they bring in these big guns, then the tide would be split, pretty nicely. I'll just help it along."

Consultant Is Needed Now Says Regatta Chief McKee

International Regatta Director-General Ev McKee said today the city was putting "the cart before the horse" when asking for Regatta long range goals and directions before plans are made for a permanent Regatta Park.

Mr. McKee said he thought council was somewhat foolish in expecting the Regatta Association to draw up plans when the city had deferred a decision to hire a consultant whose purpose would be to help make these plans.

"We can give the city a broad outline but any plans we had hinged on the outcome of a study by a fair consultant," he said.

The Regatta director-general said the association could not possibly give direction to the Regatta in future years without knowing where the annual event would be staged.

The Regatta had formed a committee with city council which proposed that the old seaplane base be used as a permanent Regatta home. The hiring of a fair consultant would aid the committee in a final decision on the feasibility of using the base for Regatta.

The seaplane base is presently being used as a storehouse and dispatching point for the city's parks and recreation department.

"If we don't have a park we cannot have a Regatta," Mr. McKee said.

The 1972 version of the Regatta was termed the most successful in years and led to optimistic outlooks on its future. Soon after the Regatta had ended however the annual cry of "it's finished" began to pour out from both Regatta Association members and civic authorities.

The whole affair centered around the Regatta's use of City Park for the five day event. Regatta directors agree that Kelowna citizens should not have to be deprived of the use of City Park during Regatta and stressed the only answer would be a permanent home for it.

Mr. McKee said a permanent home would make the Regatta a year around concern where the facilities would be open for use at any time other than Regatta week by community groups and service clubs who wish to stage programs and events in the community.

This use of a Regatta Park was to be part of the study which was turned down by city aldermen Monday.

"It looks like we are back at point A where we started before this year's Regatta began," said the director-general.

More Trouble Besets Band May Have To Close Up Shop

The Westbank Indian band might have to close its offices if further funds are not forthcoming from the Department of Indian Affairs.

Chief Noll Derricksan said today the band is short $4,247 on an operating budget of $20,597, and blamed "absence of planning" by the Indian Affairs branch. He added an Indian grants program in the province could not support existing bands and yet the department had included 25 new bands in the program.

The Indian grant fund, declared Chief Derricksan, was initially some $418,000 "short."

A lack of administrative funds isn't the only problem faced by the band however, and Chief Derricksan also said today no word has yet been received as to a date for a referendum on the issue of the formation of a breakaway band and the resignation of the present band council, which includes the chief and councillors Millie Jack and Margaret Derricksan.

A decision to take the vote was made last month, following a meeting of band membership called by Chief Derricksan to discuss apparent band apathy towards a $50,000 master development plan for Westbank Reserves Nine and Ten.

The chief had said earlier he would resign and form another band comprised of members who were willing to participate in the development scheme. No physical division would be made in the reserve, although about 500 acres of band-owned land would be split up.

Under the Indian Act, the administration of a band can be dissolved and with the consent of the Indian Affairs department a new band and council formed.

Dave Hett, district supervisor for Okanagan-Kootenay, was to assist in working out details of the referendum. Once a date has been set, a general meeting must be held two weeks before a 30-day notice of the vote has been given.

A total of 171 Indians make up the Westbank Reserve and 133 of them actually live on it, only 55 are eligible to vote.

Won't Help Says Chief

A program to provide financial assistance to chiefs and councillors of Indian bands will not measurably help the Westbank Indian band, according to Westbank Chief Noll Derricksan.

Chief Derricksan said today although the program will help "some," it will not provide adequate financial aid commensurate with duties performed.

Announced by Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien last week, the program provides $10 a band member up to a maximum of $5,000 for bands with annual incomes of less than $40,000. Based on that guideline, the Westbank band would receive about $1,700 a year with a membership of 170.

"It's been my experience that chiefs are not properly reimbursed for their time," Chief Derricksan said, adding the band was losing "our best people" to better paying jobs in the outside workforce.

... Sunny

Sunny skies will remain Thursday with highs near 60 degrees. High in the city was a pleasant 67 degrees with an overnight low of 31 degrees. There was no precipitation. High at the airport reached 66 degrees with an overnight low of a chilly 23 degrees. There was no precipitation recorded at the airport. Overnight lows today will be 30 to 35 degrees.

MUSICALLY SPEAKING

Symphony Can Thank Ministers

There are those doubting Thomases in the Okanagan Valley and elsewhere for that matter, who just cannot realize that dates in the Kelowna Community Theatre are at a premium. No longer can organizations book the theatre at close range for their own preferred dates. That must be done months in advance. The theatre though, is available to those able to accommodate themselves to the empty spaces.

A case in point is the Okanagan Valley Symphony which is slated at the short range of early September on the use of the theatre the afternoon of Sunday, Nov. 19. The Kelowna Ministerial Society has the theatre booked for that date and have had it along with several other days for some time. That Kelowna will have the Symphony playing in the theatre at all for the fall concert we have to thank Reverend Blue of Kelowna First Baptist for obtaining the release of the symphony of the theatre for the afternoon concert. The Kelowna Ministerial Association is to be congratulated and thanked for its fine public spirited gesture.

So add Sunday afternoon, Nov. 19 to your calendar of musical dates.

As previously stated the first Festival Concert Society (the old JMC) concert is Thursday evening, Oct. 12. The artist is the young American pianist, Mark Westcott. His program is at hand. He will be playing the J. S. Bach E Minor Partita; a modern Sonata by Donald Keats (no statement of nationality and I could not run it to ground even with the help of the Kelowna Library) . . . all we know is that it is sophisticated with an immediate appeal. The great Brahms Piano Sonata No. 3 in F Minor, Op. 5 will close the program.

The Brahms is noble, in five movements including a heavenly romantic Andante. Brahms was only 20 when he wrote this music. It is considered some of the most pianistic music ever written for the instrument.

The Bach E. Minor Partita is considered for mature pianists only. It is magnificent in stature. A Partita is a group of early dances belonging to the Baroque era. The E Minor opens with a Tocatta . . . a very fast dance . . . this movement is really a musical statement only. No. 2 is Allemande . . . a running piece in triple time; Air . . . then Saraband . . . the slow movement or dance; Gavotte or Tempo di Gavotta which speaks for itself; a fast finale in the form of a Gigue.

I have given these different movements so that those wishing to familiarize themselves with the music may use records or refer to the Groves Music Dictionary in the Kelowna Library. Anyone interested will be well rewarded in listening pleasure for their research.

The Keats Sonata has four movements . . . comfortably flowing; fast and precise; slow in a free style; very fast with vigor.

I intended this column to cover an interview held with Librarian Peter J. Lof of the Okanagan Regional Library and Kelowna Librarian, Mrs. Mary Pooley. I shall need space for that so will postpone the actuality except to state I was shocked at the lack of space for the Kelowna branch and the need for much larger quarters for both the headquarters of the regional and for the Kelowna branch. Mrs. Pooley has to work in a tiny space she shares with the periodicals. There is no space for the proper showing of books either. I wonder if the city and the public realize just how important our library is. I could not exist without it and there are thousands more with similar needs.

A library is no longer just a source of reading entertainment as was the case in pioneer days and the days of the early Carnegie libraries. A library today is also of necessity a source of information and knowledge. The resulting need of a better cultured and better educated public.

At moment of writing . . . a long distance call from Simon Fraser University . . . the Purcell String Quartet is still open for a sponsor. At the moment Rotary are still considering the matter but if the boys, because of a prior commitment, are unable to take the Quartet surely the Arts Council or some other group might consider it. The Quartet offers a residency of two days involving two children's concerts on the Friday morning; a youth concert in the afternoon; an evening concert for the public. Saturday to be taken up with coaching for individuals or ensembles during the day and a second different public concert Saturday evening. Sponsorship involves expenses and some guaranteed financial support. Dates offered are May 11 and 12. So there is plenty of time to organize but Simon Fraser must know immediately since other centres are anxious to have the courtesy of the Quartet's presence. Don't let this one go by Kelowna.

Firing Of PAB Employees Just Doesn't Make Sense

Expected changes in government departments when Premier Barrett arrived in Victoria came quickly and unhesitatingly with the firing of tourism chief Ron Worley and the scrapping of Phil Gagliardi's Provincial Alliance of Businessmen.

The demise of Mr. Worley was a surprise to no one, including the deputy minister himself. He blatantly disregarded former Premier Bennett's order that civil servants, particularly those holding senior posts, refrain from political activity during the August provincial election.

Mr. Worley went out on a limb while the voters were cutting down the tree.

The end of the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen however is a somewhat more delicate matter because Alliance members are not and never were civil servants.

Conceived by Mr. Gagliardi's Department of Rehabilitation and Social Improvement, the Alliance was viewed as one more outlet for Social NDPers. Others saw the Alliance as just another slap at the federal government by Mr. Bennett. It was he who blessed Mr. Gagliardi's idea saying the province needed something to balance off the ineptness of Canada Manpower in handling rising unemployment.

Alliance personnel are adamant in their opinion that new Rehabilitation Minister Norman Levi's decision to scrap the scheme was made only because the idea belonged to the Socials and not to the NDP. The fact that Mr. Levi announced plans for a similar set up under the new regime lends credence to the argument. An outcry of "poor show" on the part of Mr. Levi by Kelowna PAB representative Dave Chapman apparently did not strike fear into the heart of the rehab minister as plans still go ahead to tear apart the "pork barrel."

The few hundred employees of the PAB have been promised that if jobs in the civil service are available they will get first choice even though they are not civil servants. It would be naive to think that any senior PAB staffer did not begin seeking other employment the day after the election anyway, that fact alone may have prompted Mr. Levi to endorse the party's decision to pack the Alliance in.

All political motives aside however, the province does need some sort of provincial job placement centre. British Columbia has one of the highest per capita unemployment situations in the country, a fact so often heard from both Premier Barrett and Mr. Levi during the August campaign. Adding to the unemployment figure by firing PAB employees does not make sense.

A detailed study into whether the PAB was effective should be made and if the study proves Mr. Levi right, then by all means scrap it. If on the other hand the Alliance did alleviate unemployment then Mr. Levi should take steps to ensure that another agency with similar ideals is set up.

The new department should be handled by civil servants who are of proven neutrality politically, and are experienced in procuring employment for those on the provincial unemployment lists.

Nixon Very Presidential

President Nixon isn't simply out to win. It is becoming increasingly clear he wants a landslide victory in the Nov. 7 presidential election.

And the best way to get it, he apparently feels, is to do as little personal campaigning as possible, says a Canadian Press story from Washington.

Aides had said in advance that Nixon would remain "very presidential," maintaining that his presidential duties do not permit him the luxury of an all-out campaign.

This has infuriated and frustrated Democratic nominee Senator George McGovern who constantly chides the president for "hiding out" in the White House and refusing to join the campaign battle.

Even some Republicans, particularly in areas where candidates feel the president's prestige could make the difference in close congressional battle, have been urging Nixon to make himself more visible.

McGovern would love to stage a face-to-face debate with Nixon. But the president has gone that route before, to his regret, and he has no illusions about his ability as a vote-winner out on the campaign trail.

There are those who still insist that Nixon made a fatal blunder in 1960 in agreeing to the series of television debates with John F. Kennedy that set the cool "golden boy" of the East in sharp contrast with Nixon, sincere and articulate but no match for the charismatic Kennedy with his easy style.

This weakness as a campaigner was brought home again in the non-presidential elections of 1970 when he and Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew made an all-out push to help Republican congressional candidates. In many districts their efforts were counterproductive and the over-all result was generally humiliating.

This time, says campaign chairman Clark MacGregor, the president wants "a broad mandate which would strengthen his hand in Congress and in negotiations in foreign affairs."

The party has plenty of money and although workers are brimming with confidence they are working and organizing as though they were in a tight race.

Agnew, cabinet members, the Nixon family, party lieutenants—everyone but Nixon—are bustling about the country, denouncing every new McGovern policy almost as soon as it is enunciated.

And according to a fistful of national and local polls, Nixon's "low profile" strategy is working. Although they vary somewhat in degree, all polls show Nixon with a hefty lead as of this date.

Although McGovern's fast-paced campaign has been running smoothly of late, he still hasn't made the anticipated impact. While he is specific on a whole range of promised programs and policies, the Nixon program remains largely a question mark.

In the little campaigning he has done, the president has emphasized his accomplishments in foreign affairs—his trips to Moscow and Peking, the signing of the strategic arms limitations agreement with the Kremlin and the like.

Otherwise, the emphasis has been to attack each and every McGovern proposal while Nixon himself remains silent on such issues as tax reform, what is to become of the present wage-price control system, or future Vietnam war policy.

Many complain that this absence of dialogue has cut the heart out of the democratic system cherished by Americans, but the tactics are working like a charm for President Nixon.

October 1932

The Gyro 49ers Hoe Down passed into history without any casualties. There was no riotous gun play to scare away the cash customers who crowded the Scout Hall, but inside the spectator was transferred to the atmosphere of the hardy pioneers of the old gold rush days.

As far as the Kelowna Canneries are concerned the present season for canning tomatoes is over. Neither the Occidental Fruit Co., nor the Dominion Canneries are accepting more "toms," though they are putting up the crop already brought in. Neither company can obtain any more cans. Rains are also deteriorating the fruit.

Tourism Notes On Scandinavia

By JOHN D. HARBROON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Scandinavian countries Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland think of themselves as an entity primarily when promoting tourism. The comfortable and efficient jets of Scandinavian Airlines System, SAS, to most, which move you from Montreal to Oslo, Copenhagen, Stockholm or Helsinki—and between each of these cities—bind the Nordic countries together if you are on a package tour.

But the recent difficulties of Iceland in policing her 50-mile territorial waters, against foreign fishing vessels plus the popular referendums in Norway and Denmark on joining the European Common Market, reveal different nations with often different problems.

Finland, which isn't in the news these days, still lives nevertheless alongside the huge land mass of the U.S.S.R. from which in the winter of 1939 came the last attempt of Russia to conquer Finland. It failed miserably. But when the Finns, after linking up with Hitler's Germany in the Second World War against Russia signed the 1947 Finnish-Russian Peace Treaty, Moscow made sure the Finnish economy would be tied to Soviet needs for industrial and consumer goods.

Sweden, which has been since 1814—the classic neutral state, keeping out of NATO and so far the European Common Market, as it kept out of the first and second world wars. The very high cost of neutrality close to the U.S.S.R. means the Swedes have had to design and build their own weapons. They cannot buy "off the shelf" from an aircraft-producing NATO partner, nor engage in defence-sharing.

COSTLY NEUTRALITY
Neutrality for the Swedes means a higher defence outlay than would her membership in NATO.

Norway and Denmark are both in NATO; Norway in particular is sensitive to another 1940-type invasion, this time from the Russians with whom they share a small common border in the Norwegian Arctic.

Their different views on the European Common Market at this time came during the build-up for the public referendum about entering it. Copenhagen is on one continent, a cosmopolitan city, centre of many things, the castles and homes of Old Danish kings who once ruled the entire Baltic, also of Europe's busiest porno shops.

Oslo is a long way from Europe's great capitals, truly provincial and for this columnist, the most delightful Scandinavian capital of all for that very reason. The Norwegians are suspicious of the super-bureaucrats of Brussels, afraid they will be swamped in a bigger Europe, a new economic union—hence voted publicly against present EEC entry.

EXPORTS VULNERABLE
There is a good deal of that kind of feeling in Denmark too. But much of Danish foreign trade, for example, her bumper butter, eggs and bacon exports to Britain, could wither away if Denmark held out against the European community with Britain in it. Yet many Danes fear a new "German invasion," this time of super-businessmen flooding this tiny kingdom with their goods.

Nevertheless, the idea of a "Viking Circle" of nations appeals to many in the Scandinavian countries. Their language, except Finnish which has a Central Asian origin, are similar. Nordic businessmen almost always can handle Norwegian, Swedish and Danish together.

They are all genuine democracies, containing three of the very few constitutional monarchies left in the world and no hang-ups with former colonial empires. Greenland has been incorporated constitutionally into the Danish kingdom for example, and remains a little touchy—all 45,000 Greenlanders that is—about their autonomy.

CANADA'S STORY

October A Month For Storm Disasters

By BOB BOWMAN

If Canadians were asked what is the stormiest month of the year, one of the winter months would probably get the most votes. However, a study of the chronology of "Disaster Events on this Date," which appears at the end of these stories indicates that the worst storms have taken place in October.

For instance, there have been three storm disasters on Oct. 4. In 1851, Prince Edward Island suffered great damage. In 1866, the S.S. Victoria sank in a hurricane. She was the ship that carried the Canadian delegates to the Charlottetown conference in 1864.

Then on Oct. 4, 1922, the Halcyon area of northern Ontario was swept by a hurricane that also caused a forest fire. More than 40 people are known to have been killed.

Village Best Described Listing What Is Missing

ST. AUGUSTIN, Que. (CP) — About 1,000 English-speaking people live in this isolated fishing community on the north shore of the lower St. Lawrence 800 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Economically the village is years behind the rest of North America. Socially it maintains customs and a community solidarity which have long disappeared from most parts of Canada.

The village is perhaps best described by listing what it doesn't have.

There are no automobiles on its streets, no local doctors and, until 1964, there was no electricity.

The first telephone was installed in 1967 and oil heating was not introduced until 1968. The village, at the mouth of the St. Augustin River, is about 70 miles from the west coast of Newfoundland across the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Across the river from the village, a small band of about 80 Indians were—until last year—still living in tents.

The presence of any government is nonexistent—except for the social affairs department which distributes financial assistance to about 60 families—about half the population.

Most of the other residents earn their living from the fishing industry, while a few travel hundreds of miles to work in Sept-Isles, Labrador City, Wabush or Schefferville. During the short fishing season—July and August—about 50 families leave the village to live in huts built by their ancestors. The huts, located on the many islands which separate the village from the gulf, house the families with all members helping bring in the fish.

While the fishing situation has improved in recent years, a number of organizations have been working among the villagers to help them break their dependence on government assistance.

Among them is an American organization, the Quebec Labrador Mission Foundation of Boston, which has been working for about 12 years in 11 English-speaking communities along the lower north shore.

One of the foundation's main tasks has been to encourage and finance the young in obtaining higher education, either in the United States or in other parts of Quebec.

But it is difficult for either the young or the old to leave the village.

One young girl, who has been studying nursing in Boston, said she would like to stay in the village among her friends and relatives "but I know there's nothing to do here" but drink and loaf.

For the older people, a move to a larger centre or city is cause for fear.

An anthropologist at Laval University in Quebec City who has worked in the village said it is not easy to change the outlook of people who have lived their lives close to nature.

He said that when older villagers go to a large town or city for the first time they are struck with panic because "they fear an accident will occur."

In St. Augustin change does not come quickly.

The village is bounded by rocky areas, swampland, an impenetrable forest and the river.

The only means of communication with the outside world is by seaplane and a small steamer—the Fort Mingan—which plies the waters between the north shore communities.

The seaplane delivers the mail—when weather permits. Summer rains have often kept the plane away from St. Augustin for more than two weeks.

Provisions are brought in by boat once a year. Villagers pick provisions up at a nearby island and transport them to the Hudson's Bay general store.

Fresh vegetables and dairy products are seldom available, and canned foods form the basis of their diet.

Only half the villagers have running water while the others draw from five springs which are fed from flows from nearby hills.

While all homes have a radio—the only source of news from outside—only the mayor has a television. But the mayor says only rarely does he get a picture that is "not too bad."

Medical services are provided by a religious nurse, who often must scurry about curbing epidemics of pneumonia, bronchitis and the gripe which frequently spread through the village.

Emergency cases and births are handled by a hospital in Blanc Sablon, about 75 miles east, where patients are flown by helicopter.

Community customs surrounding marriages and funerals are guided by tradition and by the restrictions of facilities in the village. When a villager dies the body is exposed in a room of the home of a family member.

There is no embalming of the dead and windows must be kept open. Mourners come in groups because villagers maintain a fearful respect for "the spirit."

Marriages involve the whole community, and the married couple leave the celebrations to bring food and drink to elderly citizens who cannot join the festivities.

AA TRADITIONS

Sir:

Recently under the column covering court cases there was a person charged with unlawfully representing himself as president of Alcoholics Anonymous. As this is a gross misrepresentation of the organization, I would appreciate if you would publish the 12 Traditions of AA, so people will be aware that we do not solicit funds. They are:

Our common welfare should come first; personal recovery depends on AA unity.

For our group purpose there is but one ultimate authority—a loving God as He may express Himself in our group conscience. Our leaders are but trusted servants; they do not govern.

The only requirement for AA membership is a desire to stop drinking.

Each group should be autonomous except in matters affecting other groups or AA as a whole.

Each group has but one primary purpose—to carry its message to the alcoholic who still suffers.

An AA group ought never endorse, finance or lend the AA name to any related facility or outside enterprise, lest problems of money, property and prestige divert us from our primary purpose.

Every AA group ought to be fully self-supporting, declining outside contributions.

Alcoholics Anonymous should remain forever non-professional, but our service centres may employ special workers.

AA, as such, ought never to be organized; but we may create service boards or committees directly responsible to those they serve.

Alcoholics Anonymous has no opinion on outside issues; hence the AA name ought never be drawn into public controversy.

Our public relations policy is based on attraction rather than promotion; we need always maintain personal anonymity at the level of press, radio and films.

Anonymity is the spiritual foundation of our traditions, ever reminding us to place principles before personalities.

YOURS IN SOBRIETY.

Anesthesia May Interfere Study Shows

BOSTON (AP) — Evidence reported Tuesday suggests that anesthesia may interfere with the body's natural defence mechanisms, possibly making patients more susceptible to infection and the spread of some cancer cells.

The study from the National Institute of Health (NIH) provides additional evidence to other research which has suggested anesthesia's interference with the body's natural immune system, says Dr. Bruce F. Cullen, assistant professor of anesthesiology at the University of Washington in Seattle.

Dr. Cullen, in a report to the annual meeting of the American Society of Anesthesiologists, emphasized that the NIH study is not definite proof of the theory.

Although the data suggests this is true, Dr. Cullen said, the test does not say definitely that anesthesia causes patients to be more susceptible to infection.

The latest study was conducted at the NIH clinical centre in Bethesda, Md., where Dr. Cullen is a member of the anesthesiology department.

18 TESTED

Blood was withdrawn from 18 patients before anesthesia and again during anesthesia, but before surgery. The patients were anesthetized with the most commonly used agents, nine patients with halothane and nitrous oxide and nine others with nitrous oxide and intravenous thiopental and Innovar.

Dr. Cullen said Leukocytes, white blood cells which attack foreign objects in the body, were separated from whole blood and tested for their ability to engulf foreign particles, in this case, bits of latex.

The study found that both forms of anesthesia reduced the white cells' ability to engulf the foreign particles.

"This inhibition is significant statistically," Dr. Cullen said, "but we're not sure it works this way in a patient."

"This test was an artificial one, using latex, and how it would work with bacteria is another thing."

EFFECT DEFENCE?

Dr. Cullen said he is interested also in how anesthesia's effect on immune response could effect the body's defence against cancer.

"There have been studies which show that during cancer surgery, tumor cells are released into the circulatory system, and it is thought that the body's immune system destroys them and prevents them from growing elsewhere. If anesthesia interferes, it also could affect this response."

He said more research is needed to find out if the anesthesia itself interferes with immune response, or whether the anesthesia triggers another factor which affects the body's immunity.

Dr. Cullen stressed that even though anesthesia is known to have had effects on many parts of the body, it is a now-irreplaceable tool in medicine and has helped millions of patients during surgery.

Hanging Glacier Threatens Village

SION, Switzerland (Reuters) — A massive hanging glacier, 13,000 feet up on the Weiss Horn Mountain, is threatening to break off and crush the village of Ramen near Zermatt, local authorities said Tuesday.

Mountain guides have reported that a deep crevasse which separates the glacier tongue from the main Bishgletscher glacier has widened and other cracks are appearing. Authorities are considering the possibility of artificially breaking off the glacier snout, estimated to weigh several hundred thousand tons.

FIT FAMILIES

LEICESTER, England (CP) — Despite dreary predictions that Britons are being slowly poisoned by pollution, most of the population "has never been fitter," says one expert. Prof. Kenneth Mellanby told the British Science Association at a meeting that "if we were being seriously harmed we would probably be dying earlier and in poor health." Statistics showed, however, that infant mortality, the physique of children and man's own survival suggested an environmental improvement, Mellanby said.

President Of CF University Women Will Visit Kelowna Club Executive

Mrs. J. L. Black of Sackville, Nova Scotia, president of the Canadian Federation of University Women, will briefly visit the Kelowna University Women's Club executive on Thursday, accompanied by Mrs. O. R. Houghton, Western vice-president, and Mrs. Marguerite Beesley, director of B.C. East. Returning from a University Women's Club Conference in Nanaimo, they will be meeting with executives of Kamloops and Kelowna clubs. On the same day they will fly to Castlegar and Nelson where Mrs. Black will meet with these clubs and also present the $1,000 award for reading stimulation to the Kinnaird Library. This prize was awarded by the Library and Creative Arts Committee of CFUW.

A NEW YOU

Face Facts Use Oatmeal

By EMILY WILKENS

Dear Emily Wilkens:
As a teen-ager I suffered from a severe case of acne which left scars on my face. I'm now 30 and my facial skin seems very flabby which only makes the scars more apparent. Is there a home remedy that would help tighten my skin and eliminate the appearance of the scars? — L.V.A.

Dear L.V.A.: You can improve the general appearance of your skin in several ways. Twice weekly, after cleansing your face, try a grainy scrub: mix two tablespoons each of oatmeal and cornmeal, add a little water to make a paste and apply to your dampened face. Rub round and round several times. Rinse off with lukewarm water. Follow by liberally dashing on chilled witch hazel, which tones the skin.

For extra tanning and stimulation, begin and end each day with 30 splashes of hot water, adding a few teaspoonfuls of apple cider vinegar to the basin of hot water in order to maintain the acid mantle. Be sure to wear rubber gloves while you splash away.

Parliamentary Procedures Topic For Mini Discussion Workshop

Using Roberts Rule of Order, as his reference, Mike Bates, vice-president of the Pacific Region of Jaycees, conducted an informative session on parliamentary procedure for members of the Kelowna Business and Professional Women's Club at the regular dinner meeting on Monday.

Mr. Bates, a Jaycee of nine years standing, constantly refers to the Rule Book and advised the women present to become familiar with the basics of parliamentary procedures in order to conduct businesslike and effective meetings. Not only should the chairman be familiar with the procedures but each and every member should have some understanding of the general procedures, he said.

Rules are necessary, he pointed out, to keep meetings effective, objective and productive. Otherwise some members might ramble on about irrelevant matters.

After distributing a parliamentary guide to each member and guests present, he proceeded to conduct an informal question-answer discussion period. Since the group had conducted their business prior to his talk, he was able to use examples to illustrate points and rules.

Introduced by program chairperson, Mrs. Mary Patterson, the women present learned that their guest speaker was also a licensed pilot. Charter president, Mrs. Gladys Herbert expressed appreciation to Mr. Bates for his illuminating address saying the explicit references were most informative. Mrs. Joyce Ryan was welcomed as a new member by vice-president, Mrs. Alex Fry who chaired the meeting. Guests introduced were Mrs. C. W. Wachter and Mrs. Natalie Hansen.

A report on plans for the observance of Business Women's Week, Oct. 10 stated that Kelowna president, Mrs. Ailice Rinnalls and provincial president, Margaret Hansen will be interviewed on television on Oct. 10. News releases are being prepared by Mrs. Donna Alexander and Mrs. Mary Greer publicity committee.

The program for the Nov. 6 coffee-dessert meeting which starts at 7:30 p.m. at Capri will be a discussion on the need for more government of Canada departments in Kelowna. Members are reminded that they should compile a list of federal offices in Penticton which have to be contacted for additional clarification on government procedures.

SURVEY HOMES

VANCOUVER (CP) — A University of British Columbia team, headed by Vancouver Alderman Walter Hardwick, has surveyed 1,750 homes on British Columbia's lower mainland to determine residents' views on a variety of issues. Results of the survey, financed by a grant from the federal urban affairs department, will be known in March.

WOMEN'S LIB IN THE ARABIAN GULF

In the Sultanate of Oman, women are considered a sub-culture. A baby girl is not welcomed into the family, like a male child. She is made to marry young (often as early as 11 or 12) and then just becomes a member of a larger household under her mother-in-law's thumb.

UNICEF is helping Women's Lib in the Oman by training female social workers and educators and through all its programs, is attempting to change and raise the status of women.

A PENNY'S WORTH

What can you get with a penny in 1972 — a book of matches? A piece of bubble gum? Not much else — but in UNICEF's hands your penny buys enough vaccine to protect a child against smallpox. And thousands of children still die of smallpox each year in the developing countries of the world. Please give generously when UNICEF's young helpers call at Halloween.

ANN LANDERS

A Few Changes Noticed In Paris

Dear Ann Landers: I was amused by the letter from the poor fellow who has a trauma about urinating in the presence of others. He should go live in Paris for a while. If that doesn't cure his hang-up, nothing will.

Sidewalk urinals are built so that a man standing in one can be seen by passers-by from the neck up. It is not uncommon for a gentleman inside a metal john to tip his hat to a lady passing by and for her to politely acknowledge the greeting. This may sound strange to your American readers, but it's true.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband owns a successful business. Working for him is the "indispensable woman." Over the years she has become his confidant, his right arm, and constant companion.

They drive each other to work every morning, work together all day, and sometime they work together at night. At least four days a week she ends up at our house for "a drink" or dinner. He can't make a decision without her. He has let me know that her child-rearing and homemaking abilities, as well as her astuteness in business, are superior to mine. Her marriage is not a happy one and, according to my husband, this is why she gives so much of herself to her job.

The breaking point came when I discovered he has been confiding our family problems to her. I feel threatened by this woman and am afraid she is destroying my marriage. When I expressed these fears to my husband he could say nothing to me that might be interpreted as supportive or reassuring. I have lost confidence in my ability to think straight. What should I do?—The Other Wife

Dear Wife: The decision you must make is this: Do you want to remain married to a man knowing that another woman has edged you out of the position that rightfully belongs to a wife? Some wives would rather play second fiddle than drop out of the orchestra. I suggest you weigh the pros and cons and make your decision according to what is best for you and your children. A great deal depends on your age, the quality and intensity of your emotional investment and the chances for another life elsewhere.

Dear Ann Landers: Your answer to Old Salt in Key West implied that only the super-rich own yachts. If you will look up the definition of "yacht," you will find it described as "a vessel employing either sail or power, used for pleasure or sport—varying from less than 20 feet to more than 100 feet in length."

This makes my 12-year-old son a yacht owner. He has a ten foot dinghy with an outboard motor.

I don't want this kid of mine to grow up thinking he is super-rich. Please give yourself twenty lashes with an old bow line or there will be no living with him. Thanks, Ann—No Millionaires In Our Family

Dear No: Sorry I gave the wrong impression. Bring on the bow line, Buster. I'll tie a few sheepshanks in the hawser for good measure.

OK. Mission Man Wed At Duncan

Terry Lynn Hepburn of Cowichan Bay became the bride of Stephen Wakely Thomson, Okanagan Mission, in a double-ring ceremony in St. John's Anglican Church, Duncan. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Thomson of Okanagan Mission and the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hepburn of Cowichan Bay.

Soloist Mary-Louise Dove sang The Lord's Prayer and O Perfect Love, at the church, and We've Only Just Begun at the reception.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an empire waisted satin gown with lace bordered veil falling from a Juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white carnations.

Attendants were: maid of honor, Tracey Hepburn, Cowichan Bay, and bridesmaids Toni Hepburn, also of Cowichan Bay and Gillian Thomson of Okanagan Mission. They were clad in coral peau d' elegance gowns and carried bouquets of coral roses. Coral satin roses were entwined in their hair.

Steve Cowie of Kelowna served as best man and ushers were: Dave Lloyd of Kelowna, Chris Spicer, Dave McPhee and Mel Reeves, all of Victoria. For the reception at Moose Lodge, Duncan, the bride's mother chose a long dress and coat of green shantung and the groom's mother wore a long dress in floral print featuring a black background with coral, blue, cream and gray figures. Guests for the September wedding came from Victoria, Vancouver, Courtenay, Saskatoon, Sask., Penticton, Okanagan Mission, Westbridge and Tsawwassen.

For a honeymoon trip to San Francisco the bride danced a green shantung suit with white accessories. The couple make their home at 1819 Hillcrest, Victoria, where both are attending the University of Victoria.

EASY DOES IT

Dear Mrs. Packer: How can I remove white rings left on my coffee table by ornaments that were washed and evidently not thoroughly dry when replaced? — Mrs. R. McR.

I have found that most of the white stains on polished furniture will disappear with an application of liquid wax, which dissolves the polish, thus removing the stain. If the surface hasn't been waxed or polished, try rubbing the marks with cigarette ash mixed with either lemon juice, linseed oil or turpentine. After the stain has been removed, restore the finish of the wood with lubricating oil on a cloth pad. If the finish is a French polish, restore with a mixture of furniture wax and shellac. If you are uncertain of the type of finish on your table, consult your furniture dealer about proper procedure.

The Apple Has Many Faces Adds Magic To Any Meal

Apples add magic to any meal, whether they are fresh, canned or frozen. Approximately 20 million pounds of apples are grown in Canada in a season and about 35 per cent of these will be processed, mostly into juice and sauce.

Apple juice is a refreshing drink anytime of the day, but especially at breakfast. A glass of vitaminized apple juice contains the recommended amount of vitamin C needed daily. It is sold in a variety of can sizes: 5 1/2, 10, 14, 19, 28, 48 and 100 fluid ounces and as Canada Fancy or Canada Choice grade. You can also buy "frozen apple juice concentrate" to which you add water before using and "canned apple juice from concentrate" which is made from concentrated apple juice that has been reconstituted and canned by the processor. Apple juice concentrate is simply apple juice from which most of the water has been removed.

Applesauce is certainly not a new apple product on the market but it is a family favorite. It is delicious as a dessert or as an accompaniment to meat or poultry. When shopping for applesauce you will find it labelled Canada Fancy or Canada Choice grade and in 10, 14, 19, 28 and 100 fluid-ounce cans or jars.

For convenience in making apple pies or puddings you can buy canned apple slices, frozen sliced apples or apple pie filler in the store. The frozen and canned sliced apples are made from peeled, cored, sliced apples and are processed without sugar. They are sold according to grade—Canada Fancy and Canada Choice—and in various size packages.

The home economists with Canada Agriculture, Ottawa suggest spicing up canned apple juice with cloves, cinnamon and nutmeg to make it an even more flavorful beverage to serve. Applesauce can be used to give an attractive and tasty glaze to baked chicken.

SPICED APPLE JUICE

2 48-ounce cans apple juice
15 whole cloves

4 sticks cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
2 to 3 tablespoons sugar
2 lemons, thinly sliced
Combine all ingredients and bring to boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Strain. Serve hot or chilled. Decorate with apple slices studded with cloves. Makes about 12 cups.

APPLE GLAZED CHICKEN

3 whole chicken breasts
1/4 cup seasoned flour
1/4 cup melted butter
1 cup applesauce
1/4 cup honey
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Cut chicken breasts in halves and dip in seasoned flour (1/4 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, dash pepper). Arrange in greased baking dish and brush with butter. Bake 30 minutes at 350 deg. F. Combine remaining ingredients and spread over chicken. Continue baking, basting 2 or 3 times with glaze, until chicken is tender and golden brown (40 to 50 minutes). 6 servings.

Heroics By An Old Pro Puts Tigers In Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today's most pressing baseball puzzle is not which team will win the American League's East Division race but whether Tiger Stadium can survive a possible playoff victory by Detroit against Oakland Athletics.

When the Tigers clinched the pennant Tuesday night, 3-1 over Boston Red Sox, it set off a chaotic scene as the frantic fans spilled all over the field, tearing up the bases and turf and mobbing the jubilant players.

Blass Tests Injured Arm Feels Ready For Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"No pain at all, I'm ready," says Steve Blass, indicating his willingness to start the National League playoffs Saturday against Cincinnati Reds.

Pittsburgh's bread-and-butter pitcher, struck in the elbow by a line drive last Sunday, tested the arm in a brief relief appearance Tuesday night as the Pirates defeated St. Louis Cardinals 6-2.

"The main thing was that the arm felt good and there was no pain," said Blass after giving up a run and walking three batters in two innings.

The performance was good enough for manager Bill Virdon who confirmed Blass' nomination as the Pittsburgh starter in playoff Game No. 1.

The Reds tuned up for the playoffs by trimming Houston Astros 6-1. In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies clouted Chicago Cubs 11-1, Los Angeles Dodgers scored an insurance run on Carl Yastrzemski's error. Elsewhere Tuesday night, West Division champion Oakland Athletics lost to California Angels 3-2, Texas Rangers shut out Kansas City Royals 3-0, Milwaukee Braves trimmed New York Yankees 3-2, Chicago White Sox edged Minnesota Twins 5-4 and Cleveland split a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles, the Indians winning 6-5 before losing 4-3.

NOISY AFTERMATH
Firecrackers exploded as Kaline squeezed the ball for the out that made the Tigers East champions. The fans stormed the field, celebrating wildly. When they left, Tiger Stadium was a mess with patches of grass gone and about 50 broken chairs littering the field.

Firecrackers exploded as Kaline squeezed the ball for the out that made the Tigers East champions. The fans stormed the field, celebrating wildly. When they left, Tiger Stadium was a mess with patches of grass gone and about 50 broken chairs littering the field.

nipped Atlanta Braves 6-5, New York Mets won a doubleheader from the Montreal Expos 5-2 and 4-3 in 12 innings and San Francisco Giants turned back San Diego Padres 7-4.

MOOSE LEADS OFF
Bob Moose, another likely starter in one of the playoff games, pitched the first five innings for Pittsburgh Tuesday night and allowed just one hit as the Pirates took a 6-0 lead.

Steve Carlton notched his 27th victory and Don Money and Greg Luzinski each slugged two home runs to lead Philadelphia over Chicago. Carlton, who has lost 10 games, yielded nine hits and struck out seven to bring his league-leading strikeout total to 310.

Carlton's 27 victories tied Sandy Koufax's modern National League record for a left-hander.

"Any time you're linked with Koufax, you're in good company," said Carlton.

Kaline was the man most responsible for the surge to the division pennant. His seventh-inning single gave the 37-year-old veteran 22 hits in his last 44 at bats.

"The older you get," he said, "the harder it is to get up for every game."

"But for the big ones like this, it's no problem at all."

"There's not a word I can say. All the superlatives... I would use them all. There aren't words to describe how he played," said Detroit manager Billy Martin.

A REPRIEVE FOR DICK
Dick McAuliffe, whose first-inning error had given the Sox an unearned run, doubled off Luis Tiant with one out in the seventh and Kaline followed with a single. McAuliffe scored on the hit and Kaline raced to second on the play at the plate.

Bill Lee relieved Tiant and Duke Sims beat out a slow roller, sending Kaline to third. Norm Cash bounced to Carl Yastrzemski who dropped the ball as Kaline scored the insurance run.

MORE SPORT ON PAGE 17

The Athletics, marking time till Saturday, bowed to California Tuesday night with Clyde Wright going all the way for the victory. John Stephenson drove in the winning run with a ninth-inning single.

NAILS DOWN THIRD
Baltimore finished the season with a split against Cleveland.

Cleveland took the first game on Frank Duffy's 10th-inning single. Pitcher Boris Harrison hammered a home run and the Orioles nailed down third place by taking the nightcap.

Milwaukee doomed New York to a fourth-place finish by tagging the Yankees with their fourth straight loss. Home runs by Joe Lahoud and Johnny Briggs proved the difference.

Texas blanked Kansas City on the combined pitching of Mike Paul and Bill Gogolewski.

Catcher George Mitterwald's throwing error permitted Chicago's winning run to score in the ninth inning as the White Sox edged Minnesota.

Football Teams On The Road

Both Kelowna Cubs and Immaculata Dons are on the road tonight in Okanagan Mainline High School Football action. The Cubs hope to improve their 1-2 won-loss record when they travel to Kamloops to meet the North Kamloops Saints, while the Dons will try to keep their 2-0 undefeated record intact when they meet the Golden Hawks in Penticton. Immaculata and Kamloops are the only undefeated clubs in the league with the Red Devils having played one more game than the Dons.

In the individual statistics Immaculata's star halfback, Tom Ehmann, leads in both rushing yardage and points scored. The following league standings for the teams are up to date while the individual statistics are of Sept. 29.

Bruins And Sinden Negotiate But Not For Coaching Job

BOSTON (AP) — Harry Sinden, who coached Boston Bruins to the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup in 1970, then quit to sell prefabricated homes, may be returning to his old team.

The Bruins said Tuesday that they have been negotiating with Sinden to take a job in their organization. A team spokesman said, however, that he was "100 per cent certain" that Sinden would not be returning as coach. Tom Johnson is under contract for that job, as well he might be after leading the Bruins to the 1972 Stanley Cup.

"We've talked to Harry about coming back," said Weston Adams, the team's president, "but I can't say that he's coming back with us because it simply hasn't been decided yet."

There had been reports that Sinden would come back as general manager, replacing Milt Schmidt, but Adams denied that theory.

"We certainly don't intend to kick Milt upstairs," he said. "We're perfectly satisfied with the job he's done as general manager."

"Besides, with expansion, the Bruins (the Bruins' American Hockey League affiliate), the new league and everything else, the front office is twice as busy as ever before. So there should be a place in our organization for a talented guy like Sinden."

Late Field Goal By Gerela Lions Win Third Of Season

VANCOUVER (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers coach Jim Spavital warned his team before Tuesday night's Western Football Conference game against British Columbia Lions that the Lions were due for a win.

Spavital proved himself a prophet, much to his regret, as the Lions got a field goal from Ted Gerela with 31 seconds remaining for a 26-24 victory over the Bombers before 20,513 fans.

A Bomber win would have been undeserved, as they were outplayed by the Lions, except in the second quarter, with Winnipeg quarterback Don Jones and running back Mack Herson both having off nights.

Jones clicked for three touchdown passes in the second quarter, two of them to Bob Laroche and the other to Jim Thorpe, but was hurt by interceptions. Jones also kicked a field goal and three converts.

The Lions picked off four of his passes and added another interception on a toss by Laroche.

The Lions got two touchdowns from Jim Fverson on short-yardage running plays, another on a pass from quarterback Don Moorhead to Jim Young, two field goals from Gerela and a pair of converts by the B.C. kicker.

The Lions showed signs of being tamed in the second quarter, but a key defensive change by coach Eagle Keys at half time seemed to battle the Bombers.

"We switched to zone coverage on passes in the second half and it was highly effective," Keys said.

Als Beat Injured-Plagued Esks

MONTREAL (CP) — Sam Etcheverry insists it's still too early to start talking about Montreal Alouettes repeating their 1970 performance and winding up with the Grey Cup.

But Edmonton coach Ray Jauch appears to have another problem today other than reaching the national final. He must be wondering where he'll find enough able bodies to finish out the Western Football Conference regular season first.

Etcheverry's club took a positive step in the direction of the Eastern Football Conference playoffs Tuesday night when the Als literally walloped Jauch's injury-plagued Eskimos 29-13 in a rough Canadian Football League interlocking game before 11,718 fans.

Moses Denson led the Montreal attack as he bulldozed over from the one-yard line in the first quarter and then broke a series of tackles to score his second touchdown of the game—27 yards up the sideline—in the final quarter.

The Brown, Denson's running mate in the Montreal backfield most of the night, ran over from the three-yard line early in the opening quarter, while split end John Eason grabbed a 47-yard pass from Sosny Wade in the first half for the fourth Montreal pass.

Montreal place kicker Don

Sweet booted three converts and added a pair of singles on missed field goals to round out the Montreal scoring.

Edmonton fullback Sam Scarver scored the Eskimos' first touchdown on a one-yard run at 1:09 of the second quarter, while tight end Tyrone Walls counted the other on a 28-yard reception from quarterback Tom Wilkinson in the third.

Dave Cutler, Edmonton's usually-reliable place kicker, managed one convert, but missed two field goal tries.

Harris Scores Winning Goal Makes Goyette Look Good

Phil Goyette said even before their first training camp he was looking for big things from Billy Harris.

The Islanders, making their debut along with Atlanta Flames in the National Hockey League this year, chose Harris as their No. 1 junior draft pick.

Harris hasn't disappointed coach Goyette's early appraisal and Tuesday night scored the winner with less than three minutes remaining as the Islanders edged Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2 at Uniondale, N.Y.

Elsewhere, Richmond Hawks of the American Hockey League turned on their parent club, the NHL Philadelphia Flyers, by a 5-3 score while Phoenix of the Western League defeated the Seattle Seals 6-3.

In the Nassau County rink, home of the Islanders, Harris best Pittsburgh goaltender Jim Rutherford at 17:51 of the third period to finally subdue the Penguins.

Jim Mair and Andre Gagnon scored earlier for the Islanders who came from a 1-0 deficit on Al McDonough's first period goal. After a scoreless second period, Bryan Hextall knotted the game at 22.

Pittsburgh's move into tonight for their Civic Centre season game on home ice, to complete Black Hawks' exhibition, their exhibitioners' exhibition game.

The Flyers came out breathing fire and were hoisted at Richmond with two game minutes left.

WFC LEADERS

Dave Cutler managed only 13 points in Edmonton's 22-13 loss to Montreal Alouettes Tuesday night but it moved the Eskimos placekicker to within three points of the Western Football Conference lead.

Cutler now has 81 points compared to 84 for Winnipeg's Mick Herron, held scoreless in the second time this season to British Columbia Lions' 26-24 loss.

Winnipeg quarterback Don Jonas, the defending champion, moved into contention, picking up six points to boost his place total to 75.

Cunningham Road Still Unsettled

RUTLAND (Staff) — Cunningham Road is in the news again. The B.C. highways department plans to make this part of a collector route from Belgo and Willits roads to Orchard Park, Kelowna. A small group of residents formed a committee to fight the plan.

Petitions were presented to former premier W. A. C. Bennett and highways minister Wesley Black. Mr. Bennett asked R. E. Manson, B.C. government agent in Kelowna, to investigate.

Committee chairman Denis Hubber said a letter was sent Tuesday to Robert Strachan, recently named highways minister in the New Democratic Party administration, informing him of the situation. "We hope they will act more promptly than the Social Credit people did," he said.

Meanwhile, other residents of Spring Valley subdivision want the route left as it was planned about eight years ago.

Stench Stopped Says Resident

RUTLAND (Staff) — Odor from a former winery dumping site at Reid's Corner has almost stopped, a resident said Tuesday.

Calona Wines hauled waste from its Richter Street plant to sewage lagoons at Reid's Corner. The stench caused a demonstration by residents, which, in turn, caused the B.C. pollution control board to order the company to stop dumping.

"It's getting pretty well cleaned up," said Mrs. Henry Splitt of Old Vernon Road. The board approved a new site in the Joe Rich area because of its fast drainage. It was reported a Citizens' Action Committee has been formed and is preparing a brief for presentation to provincial authorities.

Legion Arrangements Ready For Nov. 11 Observance

PEACHLAND (Special) — Remembrance Day, Poppy Day and the initiation of a new member were all matters dealt with on the agenda of the October meeting of Branch 69 Royal Canadian Legion held in Peachland Monday night.

New member, Grahame Colison was introduced to the meeting and duly initiated by J. G. Swift, branch president, assisted by acting sergeant-at-arms Harold Thwaite.

A Remembrance Day discussion was held and all arrangements for refreshments were made with the auxiliary president and bar committee. Service and parade arrangements will be finalized at a special general meeting to be held Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.

The 1972 poppy campaign was discussed. Extra help will be needed both in Westbank and Peachland. Another special meeting will be called Oct. 29 at 10 a.m. to plan and set up committees.

Secretary treasurer of branch 69, Eric Davidson, had some pleasant news to impart to the small meeting. The branch has now paid off its bank loan which was $7,000 only two years and one month ago. Harold Thwaite asked that a committee be set up immediately to plan for investing of surplus funds. But members ruled this could be done after November, when the incoming officers and executive could have more say in this. No formal celebration or mortgage burning was set up at this time.

A motion was passed raising branch dues in 1973 from the present $6.00 a year to $7.50 a year. A notice of this change has been posted on the notice board since the September meeting, and no objections were received.

George Walsh chairman of the entertainment committee reported he had spoken to members about live music in the hall every Friday evening, and he recommended that this be initiated. He was given authority to make arrangements.

Membership chairman Val Patterson reported membership of the branch is 104, a drop since last year of two. She also reported on the cost of a complete filing system for membership, and was given authority to purchase this system on behalf of the branch.

It was reported that the RCMP centennial calendars are now available from the branch secretary. All wishing to purchase them were asked to leave their orders at the hall.

Val Patterson reported on her attendance at the Zone meeting in Princeton. The next meeting of the Zone to be nomination meeting of Zone officers to be held in Oliver January 7th.

WATER STUDY

RUTLAND (Staff) — A study of nitrates in private wells here is continuing, it was announced Tuesday. People wishing their water tested should phone the health centre.

South Okanagan Health Unit hired two men under the federal government Local Initiatives Program. Medical officer of health David Clarke said investigations will continue until about the end of November, when a report will be compiled.

Excessive quantities of nitrates have been found in some wells. This could result in "blue babies" or heart disease.

DRINK UP

LONDON (CP) — Drinkers in a West End pub fled clutching pints of beer when fire broke out in an upstairs room. As firemen fought the blaze, the drinkers finished off their pints on the sidewalk.

PEACHLAND SOCIALS

PEACHLAND (Special) — Thursday the Peachland Art Class will hold an organizational meeting at 1:30 p.m. in the Peachland Centennial Hall. This meeting will set up art classes for the coming season. Everyone interested in all forms of art are invited to attend.

Friday, St. Margaret's Anglican Church Guild will meet in the home of Mrs. F. Fairly on Whinton Crescent at 2:30 p.m. Final arrangements for the ladies annual bazaar will be made. The bazaar this year will be held on Oct. 27 in the community hall.

Also on Friday the Peachland branch of the Kelowna and District Retirement Services will open their season with a social afternoon to start at 2:00 p.m. in the Peachland Community Hall.

After Thanksgiving two important meetings are scheduled for Oct. 11. The Peachland Ladies Curling Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Centennial Room to discuss teams and ladies curling for the 1972-73 season. If you intend to curl, this meeting is a must. Also on the same night the regular meeting of the Peachland United Church Women will be held at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mrs. H. J. Williamson on Bulyea Ave.

Tickets for the Peachland and District Chamber of Commerce Harvest Ball and Dinner to be held October 14 at the community hall are now available from any director. This event is open to all.

LATE LOVERS

LONDON (CP) — Seventy middle-aged women looking for young husbands have been exceptionally lucky, says Evelyn Harrison, secretary of a lonely hearts club. The ladies received 60 proposals from men mainly under 30 offering them homes, security and sex. Most favored among the prospective husbands is a 30-year-old weight-lifter. "We didn't expect to hear from so many young men," Evelyn said. "Of course, no one's complaining."

TO CONCORDE

Russia Could Be The Key

TORONTO (CP) — The key to Britain's gamble with the supersonic Concorde could be the Soviet Union, says David Nicholson, chairman of the British Airways Group.

The Russians have their own SST and want to introduce it into service in early 1975, about the same time as the British-French Concorde, he said in an interview.

If current conversations with the Soviets, Air France and Britain result in a pool agreement on trans-Siberian routes then "we've broken the back of supersonic travel."

Mr. Nicholson said the pool agreement would open up travel between London, Paris, Moscow and Tokyo.

"Then I believe the Japanese will want to join in. And if they get the Concorde they will want to use it in the Pacific. And hopefully we would go on west to New York."

DEPEND ON CONCORDE

His guess is that this will force the United States to enter the "supersonic era." Since it would probably take five or six years to produce their own SST, Americans would have to depend on the Concorde.

Until the imponderables are sorted out, it will continue to be difficult to forecast the future of Concorde operations, he said. The airlines still do not know what countries they will be allowed to fly over, where they'll be able to land or what other nations might come up with supersonic planes. The Concorde will not be a low-fare plane. Its success will depend on flights with a high proportion of high-yield traffic. For the moment, this rules out Canada in future Concorde plans.

British Airways Group, which brings the operations of British Overseas Airways Corp., British European Airways and associated companies under one management, sees the Concorde as a pioneering job that will have benefits in the long term.

Mr. Nicholson said it will cut travelling time for international businessmen in half.

"We expect to get 80 per cent of our first-class passengers switching over to supersonics as well as attracting first-class passengers from other airlines that do not have the planes."

On competition from low-fare charter operations, the British Airways chairman said there is every reason to hope for agreement between Canada, Britain and the U.S. for a part-charter system that will allow major airlines to take charter groups on normal scheduled flights.

PASSENGERS BENEFIT
In that way both the businessman, who wants a choice in bookings on short notice or the right to cancel without losing money, and the cheaper fare passengers could benefit by greater utilization of available seats. The airlines would increase profitability.

Another major problem in the aviation industry has been the cyclical nature of over-capacity, Mr. Nicholson said. BOAC, for example, has been flying the North Atlantic route at 50 per cent capacity—as low as 35 per cent in winter and as high as 80 in summer.

The industry goes through stages when it builds up profitability and performance gets too optimistic and then enters a period of over-capacity when performance and profitability decline.

"I would say we've gone through the trough, in 1971, and if the past is anything to go on over-capacity should now level off" for the next five years.

But, past actions will probably see the airlines get optimistic again and "buy a lot of planes" and run into the over-capacity problem again in the following five years.

Mr. Nicholson, 49, was born in Britain of parents from Amherst, N.S. He became chairman of the group a year ago.

Space Coin From Gemini 7 May Now Be Worth $100,000

HOUSTON (AP) — A 179-year-old U.S. coin secreted on board the Gemini 7 spacecraft in 1965 was sold recently for $15,000 and the man who sold it said it could now be worth as much as $100,000.

The coin is a 1793 large cent which normally sells in numismatic circles for about $2,000.

A space agency spokesman, in response to a query from The Associated Press, admitted that the coin had been slipped aboard Gemini 7, the 14-day earth orbit space mission in 1965. The spokesman said that no one connected with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, including Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell, profited from the transaction.

In a prepared statement, the space agency said: "The coin was placed in the in-flight medical kit by Dr. Howard Min-

The coin, said the statement, was the property of William Ulrich, a coin dealer then living in Minneapolis, Minn. NASA said that after the mission Minners, Borman and Lovell signed a letter certifying the coin had been in space and then returned it to Ulrich.

Ulrich sold the coin two months ago to William Fox Steinberg, a long-time coin dealer in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

At his home in the Bahamas, Ulrich, now retired, said he sold the coin for $5,000 in cash, plus a $10,000 lot located next to the Lucaya golf course on Grand Bahama Island. Ulrich said he now regrets the sale.

"I wouldn't even consider selling it if I had it today," he said. "That coin could be worth today anything up to $100,000."

Minners said he slipped the coin into the Gemini 7 in-flight all three signed the letter and removed the coin on the recovery ship Wasp, after the space flight, and showed it to the astronauts. Later, he said, they sent it with the coin back to Ulrich. "There was no financial consideration to myself or to the astronauts," Minners said.

McGovern To Announce Plan Tuesday On How To End War

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator George McGovern will announce Tuesday a plan to end the Indochina war, his campaign aides say. It will be part of an intensive anti-war campaign by his supporters during the Columbus Day weekend.

McGovern "will tell America what Richard Nixon cannot: how a president of the United States can bring all of our servicemen out of Vietnam and back to America," said Lawrence O'Brien, chairman of McGovern's Democratic presidential campaign.

But Vice-President Spiro Agnew hinted that the Nixon administration may have some peace developments of its own to announce. There are "some things I can't relate" concerning attempts to settle the war, he told reporters in Great Falls, Mont., Tuesday.

McGovern, who planned appearances in Buffalo and New York City, today criticized Nixon administration spending policies, saying Nixon is trying to escape responsibility for "the mammoth budget deficit projected for 1973."

He said the total deficit during Nixon's first term may exceed $100 billion and accused the administration of conducting a "political con game" in its demands for a $250 billion ceiling on federal spending.

'DRUNKEN SPENDING'

Despite the ceiling, he said it is likely President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam "will get every penny he wants."

"And," he added, "Mr. Nixon will continue his drunken sailor spending habits on military overkill and waste."

Sargent Shriver, McGovern's running mate, appealed for the labor vote in Columbus, Ohio, telling a labor group: "In every stage in his career Richard Nixon has said no to programs designed to benefit the workers of this country."

"Any labor leader who tells you to vote for Richard Nixon is telling you to vote against your own interests—to slash your own throats—to vote against the labor movement," he said.

President Nixon has not scheduled any campaign appearances this week. Vice-President Agnew campaigned for the ticket in Indiana and Montana. He planned to go today to South Dakota, McGovern's home state, and to Nebraska.

In Great Falls, Agnew praised the administration's initiatives in farm exports, saying they meant "cash in the pockets of American farmers."

He had strong criticism in Fort Wayne, Ind., toward some anti-war hecklers, whom he denounced as "bleeding hearts" who should "stop tearing your own country apart and recognize your enemy."

Joergensen's Nomination As PM Up To Party Today

From AP—REUTER
COPENHAGEN (CP) — Anker Joergensen, Denmark's prime minister-designate, is a man of the working people, who knows about poverty and hard manual labor.

His nomination goes before the Social Democratic party's general executive for approval today 24 hours after Prime Minister Jens Otto Krag announced he was resigning for personal reasons.

Krag's resignation after 25 years in the forefront of Danish political life, including seven years as prime minister, came only hours after the electorate swept Denmark into the European Common Market in a national referendum.

The change in government leadership has overshadowed referendum result which was the crowning achievement in Krag's long political career. Joergensen, a member of parliament and chairman of the country's largest trade union, the General and Skille-Workers Union, was nominated as prime minister by Krag. Before he can formally take over, his nomination must be approved at a meeting of the Social Democratic party's executive.

PARTY GROUPS MEET
Also meeting today are the leaders of the five parliamentary party groups to decide whether there continues to be a parliamentary basis for a minority Social Democratic government.

There is little doubt among political observers here that the 50-year-old Joergensen—a moderate, slightly left-of-centre Social Democrat—will clear these hurdles.

The only possible obstacle to a continued Social Democratic government would be a withdrawal of support from it by the 17 members of the Folketing (parliament) for the Socialist People's party, on whom the Social Democrats rely for their working majority of one vote.

But at a meeting of the Socialist People's party executive committee Tuesday night there was no sign that it would back down on Joergensen and force a general election.

If there is no quibbling from the party leaders, Joergensen will go to Queen Margrethe to receive formal permission to form a new cabinet.

Joergensen speaks like a working man but has the temper, vision and intellect needed to take charge of a Social Democratic party badly split over Denmark's scheduled entry into the Common Market Jan. 1.

Joergensen is the country's most respected union leader. But he went against his own 250,000-member union in supporting Krag's drive for market membership.

Joergensen now faces the job of making peace in the party, taming rebellious trade unions and striking a modus vivendi with the Socialist People's party.

WHA Pre-Season Sees Donnybrook

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Los Angeles Sharks and Alberta Oilers made Team Canada's physical efforts against the Russians, Swedes and Czechoslovakians seem tame by comparison when their World Hockey Association game at Edmonton ended Tuesday night.

The game-ending buzzer was the signal for Oilers' Doug Barrie and Howie Heggedahl of Los Angeles to start throwing punches. Both benches emptied and 1,200 fans witnessed a Pier Six brawl.

The donnybrook climaxed an already rugged game won by Los Angeles 4-3 on defenceman Jim Niekamp's second-period goal.

In other WHA pre-season action, Philadelphia's John McKenzie was taken to hospital after he slammed into a goal post and the Blazers' coach wasn't around to see Quebec Les Nordiques' 6-4 win.

Minnesota's prize rookie Bot MacMillan scored twice in front of 1,700 at Winnipeg to pace the Fighting Saints to a 5-2 win over the Jets, still without player-coach Bobby Hull who is awaiting a decision by U.S. courts on his playing status.

Earl Heiskala, J. P. LeBlanc and Pete Slater scored for Los Angeles at Edmonton where 50 penalty minutes were handed out in the first period and 40 more in the second. The third period was relatively quiet with only five minor penalties before the game ended.

No additional penalties were announced after the main event, Ed Joyal, Ron Anderson and Dennis Kassian scored for the Jets.

At Quebec, Yves Bergeron's two goals led Les Nordiques before 6,100 fans. The Quebec club dominated play, outshooting the Blazers 39-29, and got additional goals from J. C. Tremblay, Pierre Guite, Alain Caron and Renald Leclerc.

Danny Lawson, John Bennett and Brian Campbell replied for Philadelphia.

MacMillan was helped on the scoresheet at Winnipeg by George Morrison, George Konik and Fred Speck. The Jets, who were shelled 7-5 by the Saints last Sunday, got goals from Bill Sutherland and Ab McDonald.

Canada And U.S. Must Integrate Their Resources

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (CP) — Canada and the United States have no alternative but to integrate their combined resources, the president of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association said today.

Speaking to the National Hardwood Lumber Association, W. W. Gillespie said the two countries should create a North American trading bloc similar to the European Common Market.

He noted that both countries suffer from unemployment, but blamed high Canadian jobless figures on people who don't want to work.

He called for a combined approach by all trade associations to press governments for manpower, saying many sawmills have job openings which people refuse to take.

In expanding his theme of "two countries, one industry," he called for collaboration at all levels of government and the timber industries in both countries to face problems of pollution, inflation and economic stability.

A text of his address was released in advance of delivery.

Montreal Retire Desjardins' No. 63

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes officially retired sweater No. 63 Tuesday night and honored its long-time wearer, lineman Pierre Desjardins.

Desjardins received gifts that included a trip to Jamaica, two oil paintings, a television set. An $8,000 scholarship fund is being set up in his name.

And, to top it all, the Alouettes came through in fine style as they defeated Edmonton Eskimos 29-13 in a Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Desjardins, a member of the Alouettes for almost a decade, had been sidelined almost continuously since the club won the Grey Cup in 1970 because of repeated knee injuries and operations.

Only defensive halfback Larry Fairholm remains with the club from the group that was here when Desjardins joined the team.

WITH CAMPAIGNING LEADERS

Views On Wife's Participation

OTTAWA (CP) — Does a wife's participation help a party leader in an election campaign?

No comment, say Liberal spokesmen in keeping with Prime Minister Trudeau's vigil-ant stand against what he considers any encroachment on his private life.

"That's for the press to judge," says Tom Sloan, a senior aide to Robert Stanfield, Progressive Conservative leader. Mary Stanfield is often with her husband, active in her own way.

"We think she does," says Lewis Seale, press secretary to David Lewis of the New Democrats in referring to the now-constant attendance of the leader's wife, Sophie.

Suzanna Caouette, wife of Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, is frequently with him when he travels within his native Quebec. The economies of campaign spending have something to do with her absence outside the province, since Mr. Caouette is saying the party budget is always, are reluctant to speak of Margaret Trudeau, saying what she does on or off the campaign trail is a family affair.

But for better or for worse, the pretty 24-year-old wife of the prime minister seems to be reaping the most publicity with the least effort among the wives of party leaders.

Here is a rundown of what the wives have been doing in the Oct. 30 election campaign so far:

Since the election campaign started in early September, Mrs. Trudeau, the daughter of former Liberal cabinet minister James Sinclair, has been with her husband on tour twice, in Montreal and in Vancouver and Calgary.

Yet she reaped more publicity than the other wives because of a near fainting spell, an adventurous son and a security-conscious hotel staff.

NOT COMFORTABLE

She comes across as a charming woman who is not comfortable in the crowds that often jam around the prime minister.

Both Trudeaus have had tiffs with photographers about pictures but she appears downright eager to have Justin photographed whenever possible. She appeared on the stage twice so far, once at Mr. Trudeau's nominating and campaign-opening meeting in the Mount Royal area constituency of Mount Royal and once in Vancouver, her hometown.

She almost fainted at the Mount Royal meeting and had to leave the stage for fresh air while her husband was speaking. Liberal officials said it was the heat in the crowded hall.

In Vancouver the staff of the Hotel Vancouver wouldn't tell Mrs. Trudeau the number of her husband's room—they didn't recognize her.

Then, while flying home from the Vancouver-Calgary trip, she met Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and Justin grabbed the NDP leader's finger. He wouldn't let go, pulling himself into the headlines.

Mrs. Lewis commented: "Two nice kids."

TAKES ACTIVE PART

Robert Stanfield is not reticent about acknowledging his wife's presence on his trips along urban streets, shaking hands.

"Hi. How are you? My wife's back there somewhere."

Mary Stanfield may be as much as half a block behind, admiring a baby or chatting with some elderly women.

Meanwhile, daughter Mimi often is either close at hand or following, generally silently, but speaking when spoken to, behind her mother or her father.

Mrs. Stanfield, a small grey-haired woman with a ready smile, seems less stiff with strangers than her husband. She has been with her husband from the start of the campaign.

Mrs. Stanfield, the daughter of the late Judge W. L. Hall of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, is Mr. Stanfield's second wife. His first wife was the late Joyce Frazee of Vancouver.

MOST POLITICAL

Mrs. Lewis probably is as politically-oriented as any woman in the country. A member of the CCF before it became the NDP, she is well-known in the party, where she worked for her husband in York South, the Toronto-area constituency where Mr. Lewis is seeking re-election.

But now she has joined him for the duration of the campaign, to be with her husband and to fill in places where her husband can't be.

Mrs. Lewis is a grey-haired, energetic mother, two of whose three sons have followed their parents' footsteps into politics—Stephen, now Ontario NDP leader, and David, as the York South campaign manager.

It is not unusual to see the Lewises holding hands or delivering a little peck to the cheek. Mrs. Lewis pretends to be jealous whenever her husband is seen talking to an attractive woman.

ALSO AFFECTIONATE

Social Credit Leader Real Caouette and Mrs. Caouette are another example of an affectionate couple.

Social Credit, attempting to establish itself again as a national party, is on a small budget and there is little money for travelling wives, or for that matter, staff.

But in Quebec, Mrs. Caouette is frequently with her husband. Wearing tinted glasses against the bright lights on the stage, the handsome brown-haired Mrs. Caouette spends much of her time after his speeches mingling with the wives of those at the meeting.

A warm, outgoing person, she appears to know many of them.

Native People Can Help Their People Best—Young

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A feeling by Indian band councils that native children were being "short-changed" on education resulted in "an exciting challenge" for Richard Young.

Mr. Young is an instructor in counselling theory and practice at the University of Western Ontario's Althouse College of Education.

This year, he is assisting nine Indian students in gaining skills to return to their reserves and "help their people attain educational and personal goals."

"One thing we have learned in education is that native people can help native people best, just as blacks can help blacks best and poor people can help poor people best," Mr. Young said in an interview.

"What's particularly important is that this program resulted from the band councils approaching the department of Indian affairs who in turn approached the universities," he said. "It wasn't something that was foisted on them."

The one-year social counselling course for native people was started here last year with 18 students, most of whom upon graduation were hired by local-area Indian bands. Two others accepted positions with the Indian affairs department and two of the graduates remained in London—one with the board of education and the other to work at a boys' home.

This year's students, seven men and two women who range from 23 to 30, are taking such subjects as introductory sociology, health and physical education, guidance and elementary education, remedial reading and Indian culture and history featuring a native lecturer, as well as the counselling course. Requirements of the program are the same as for university entrance—either successful completion of Grade 13 or a Grade 12 diploma with the student being more than 23 years of age.

Tuition is paid directly to the university by the Indian affairs department. Financial arrangements for books and lodging are made between the department and the individual student.

In addition to his academic studies, the student spends nine weeks in the field, working with counsellors in the various school systems in southwestern Ontario.

While the social counselling course is run in conjunction with the regular program at Althouse College, there is also a steering committee made up of federal officials and members of various Indian bands.

World Environment Secretariat Kept Alive By Canada And Ford

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the Ford Foundation have kept alive the secretariat that ran the world environment conference in Stockholm in June in hopes that the United Nations General Assembly will make it a permanent organization.

Paul Tremblay, associated deputy external affairs minister, said in an interview Tuesday that the government and the foundation have contributed $100,000 each to keep the secretariat going until the end of the year.

Canada is making no secret that it hopes Maurice Strong, former head of the Canadian aid agency and then secretary-general of the conference, will remain as head of a permanent agency.

Such an agency was advocated at the Stockholm conference. The General Assembly, now meeting, will debate the declaration and action plan that came out of Stockholm and Mr. Tremblay said it is expected that they will be approved.

Germany was excluded because it was not a member of any UN agency.

Mr. Tremblay said the Soviets have made it clear they want East Germany to have observer status at the UN when the Stockholm documents are discussed.

But, he said, if they fail in that effort he does not think the Soviets will want to risk the danger of a world confrontation on environmental matters by rejecting what went on in Sweden.

He and R. F. Shaw, deputy environment minister, said the Soviets were well informed of the discussions in Stockholm, despite their absence.

At the same time they had shown considerable interest in environmental questions since the conference, passing legislation to deal with internal matters and signing a bilateral agreement with the U.S.

Mr. Tremblay commented to a reporter after speaking at a meeting at which members of the Canadian Stockholm delegation reported to a committee that helped them prepare for the conference.

In the interview and during this talk he said despite the concern felt over the absence of the Soviet Union and most East European countries in Stockholm, Canada feels they will approve the work of the international meeting.

The Soviet Union refused to attend because East Germany did not get an invitation. East

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Watch Carefully Corneal Abrasion

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A few days ago I had a tremendous pain in my left eye and had to seek treatment at the hospital, where they said I had a corneal abrasion.

I had been wearing my contact lenses that day for about 18 hours. (This is not unusual for me.) I am mystified because I don't know what it means. They didn't have time to explain it to me and I can't find it in medical books.

Do I have to go to an eye doctor for further treatment or will it heal itself? How could a corneal abrasion have happened? I am 23 and have been wearing contacts (wear regular glasses, too) for seven years.

My husband's job takes him away from home 18 hours a day so I do read a awful lot.—J.S.

"Abrasion" means a wearing away. A corneal abrasion means that it was the cornea, or outer covering of the front of the eyeball, that got worn down. Possibly nobody can ever tell exactly how it happened—but I would be surprised if your contacts didn't have something to do with it. Perhaps you got some very fine dust under one of them; perhaps not. Perhaps just the contact lenses finally wore the cornea down.

Most wearers of contacts are warned at the outset that it isn't wise to wear them constantly. The amount of time they can be tolerated varies from person to person. It can take time before the damage makes itself known.

Yes, see an eye doctor until he tells you the cornea is healed. If, for instance, infection got into that abraded area, it could do real damage.

Eighteen hours a day is a long time to wear contacts, and I would suggest that you limit it to much shorter periods (if the doctor lets you resume wearing them at all). On those long reading binges, why not wear your ordinary glasses instead of the contacts? It will be that much insurance against possible future trouble.

Even after the damaged eye heals, it wouldn't be a bad idea to have an eye specialist check the eye at intervals.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if the use of iron and calcium together is harmful? Someone told me it was bad for me due to my age. I am 34. Could you explain why it is bad?—B.J.D.

I guess you'll have to ask "someone." It is possible to get too much iron but that rarely happens in adults. (There is such a thing as iron poisoning in children.)

As to any problem from taking calcium, too, I don't know of any, and I don't know why your age should be involved. Does "someone" say you are too old or too young?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Assuming that an individual drinks little or no liquids, except a cup of coffee at breakfast and tea for dinner, how much water should a person drink each day?

It has been my observation that elderly people get into the habit of drinking too little water.—C.D.S.

I think your observation tends to be correct. A person should get at least a quart of water a day (More if he sweats a good deal) but it is of no consequence what form it is. It can be plain water, tea, coffee, milk, soup, juices, soft drinks or whatever. All are mostly water.

Most of our solid food contains water—meat, fruits, vegetables. Have you ever watched someone make mashed potatoes from dry powder? That will give you an idea of how much water is in potato. There's even more in a good many other vegetables.

Opening lead—ace of hearts. The United States team suffered severe losses in its slam bid, a department in which the Blue Team has excelled and which stood them in good stead throughout the 1972 Olympiad.

But not every slam decision favored the Italians, for once in a while the sun would peek through and shine brightly on the Aces and they would score a sizable swing on a slam. Lawrence and Goldman were North-South on this hand when the bidding went as shown. Lawrence's double of two hearts was negative, that is, it was not a penalty double but indicated a promising hand and suggested a suit other than spades as trump.

But Goldman had a one-suited hand that ranked well above a minimum opening bid, including first or second round control of every suit, and he forthwith suggested the possibility of a slam by leaping straight to four spades.

Lawrence had values well beyond those indicated by his negative double and he showed them by raising partner to five spades, a forward-going bid which at the same time implied that the slam was in the bag if South had control over hearts. Goldman, with a perfect type of hand for a slam, happily accepted the challenge and easily made 12 tricks.

When D'Alleio and Pabis Tucci held the North-South cards for Italy, their bidding went:
South West North East
1♠ Pass 2♠ Pass
3♠ Pass 4♠

Undoubtedly West's failure to bid two hearts made it more difficult for the Italians to realize they could make a slam with only 28 high-card points, and they never made a strong move to investigate that possibility. As a result, the U.S. scored 500 points in the deal, while 11 international match points.

Gingerly, the police unwrapped the unaddressed parcel to find inside 14 hot peppers.

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — It was to be a big going-away party for David Morgan before he started a full term for possession of marijuana.

His friends chartered a San Francisco Jay cruise, four boats and held an all-day party on it.

When the ship arrived back at Fisherman's Wharf, police officers who had disguised themselves as members of the crew of the ship arrested 44 of David's friends, and him, too.

Narcotics officers said "just about everything there is in the way of drugs was being used on board."

They also explained they would have made the arrests while out on the boat, but "we were afraid we would get thrown overboard."

Nader Releases Volume 1 On Study Of Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ralph Nader released Tuesday the first volume of what he promised will be an encyclopedic study of the United States Congress, declaring it the "great American default."

"The White House and the president are emerging in the United States as a new kind of monarchy," said Nader in a news conference heralding the release of a paperback book entitled, Who Runs Congress? The President, Big Business or You?

The over-all conclusion of the book is that the president and big business dominate Congress, but the people could control it if they would lobby their congressmen vigorously, vote out the bad ones and hold the others accountable.

"But until they do so, the proud lords of legislation can frolic in the pool, sleep quietly at their desk, vote themselves pork-barrel legislation, accept the money of special interests, capitulate to the president, obstruct important legislation, and be reassured by the knowledge that it is extremely unlikely that these pleasures and powers will ever be taken away," says the book.

In his news conference, Nader answered the who-owns-Congress question this way: "We are in the midst of a serious constitutional crisis. Congress under the Constitution is really the pre-eminent branch. Unfortunately . . . Congress has abdicated its responsibilities to powerful committee chairmen, executive bureaucracy and special-interest groups."

REGAIN GOVERNMENT

The book is just a small part of a planned series of 20 to 30 volumes, involving the work of more than 1,000 volunteers and costing nearly $200,000. Nader said the series is intended as a tool to enable citizens to recapture control of government.

Nader proposed that Congress begin recapturing its power by scheduling a special session for late 1973 to tackle one issue: congressional reform.

The book, published at $1.95 by Bantam, is written by Mark J. Green, James M. Fellows and David R. Zwick, all products of Harvard University or its law school.

The project also includes profiles of 488 senators and congressmen which are published at $1 each by Grossman, with discounts for quantity.

The profiles are based in part on 96-page questionnaires submitted to every senator and congressman. At least a dozen refused to fill them out, and others would answer only some of the 633 questions.

Representative Clarence J. Brown (Rep.-Ohio) said the reference to him in the volume contains 21 errors, including the allegation that he owns a radio station in his district while serving on the communications subcommittee of the House of Representatives commerce committee.

ACTIONS EXPLAINED

Brown, in a House speech, said he sold the station two years ago, the earliest opportunity he had to do so after coming to Congress. He said he explained the transactions fully in an interview with a Nader staffer.

"If this is an example of the kind of information contained in the report," Brown said, "it seems to me the question should be 'who runs Ralph Nader?'"

Representative William Scherle (Rep. Iowa) said one congressman found 48 errors of fact, but had no assurance they would be corrected.

Nader said the profiles were reviewed by some 200 political scientists, lawyers, economists, journalists and students.

Besides the book and profiles, timed for the Nov. 7 U.S. election, the Nader group plans a series of 11 "topics" studies totaling 3,000 pages or so, a series of 13 studies on congressional committees, and two other paperbacks—a citizen handbook and a congressman's handbook.

"Who runs Congress?" says that special interests control Congress mostly by campaign contributions to congressmen, rather than by outright bribery. The book says there are two main sources of campaign funds, big business and labor unions, and business contributes far more.

The Most Widely Used Drug In England, Wales—Alcohol

LONDON (CP) — Alcohol has become the most widely-used drug in England and Wales with the number of confirmed addicts nearing 500,000, authorities here have announced.

At the same time, the age of alcoholics is dropping, say officials of the National Association for Mental Health.

In 1962, the average age of alcoholics was 45 but a recent survey had shown that 43 per cent now were under 40 and 13 per cent were under 30. Eighteen per cent were aged 41 to 45. In addition to confirmed alcoholics, the association found, there are about 500,000 "heavy drinkers" in England and Wales.

A recent article in the weekly publication New Scientist estimated that in Scotland the incidence of alcoholism may be up to seven times greater than in England.

The total population of England and Wales is just under 50 million; the population of Scotland is slightly more than five million.

MEN DRINK MORE

Government studies here have shown that men are four times as likely as women to become alcoholics, although there is strong evidence of increasing alcoholism among middle-class, middle-aged women.

Social workers in London are expressing alarm at the rapidly-increasing incidence of alcoholism among those in the 15-18 age group. Many say alcohol is becoming a bigger problem than drugs.

Medical authorities throughout Britain are intensifying a campaign to acquaint the public with the dangers of excessive alcohol consumption. They say alcohol can weaken the heart muscles, cause vitamin deficiency, liver diseases and many other illnesses.

Medical authorities emphasize that there is no straightforward cure for alcoholism. The main forms of treatment are shock therapy, membership in Alcoholics Anonymous or psychotherapy sessions.

Pope Discusses N. Ireland With British Prime Minister

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul met British Prime Minister Heath today and told him Roman Catholics "will ever be among the first" to help bring "peace in justice" to Northern Ireland.

Heath assured the pontiff that it was "our firm purpose to work for the ending of violence in Northern Ireland." But he said "the power of political leaders in our democratic society is, of course, severely limited."

The Pope greeted Heath at the door of the pontiff's private library in the Apostolic Palace and they shook hands warmly.

In his speech in English to the prime minister, the Pope hailed Britain's decision to join the European Economic Community and said:

"In so doing, not only will she be furthering the cause of the brotherhood of all men, but she will also be bringing closer the day when the goal of universal peace and justice will finally be attained."

Heath will return to London Thursday at the end of his three-day visit to Italy during which he has had talks with Italian government leaders, mainly on European issues.

Heath and the Pope reviewed a wide range of problems including the Middle East, strife in Uganda and the war in Vietnam. Heath said in his speech to the Pope:

"Some of the problems we have reviewed today are ones which directly concern us both. Some are problems for which others are primarily responsible."

He referred also to obstacles his government faces in trying to end the conflict between Catholics and Protestants in Ulster.

"We can do certain things," he said. "We can try to set certain changes in motion—but in the end we return to the responsibility of the individual and of the family."

The formal exchange of speeches took place when the prime minister presented members of his delegation to the Pope following a private con-

HOPES FOR PEACE

"It is likewise our prayerful hope," the Pope said, "that peace in justice may soon be established in Northern Ireland. . . . We trust that whatever obstacles hinder the solution of the present problem will speedily be eliminated."

He praised all those who try to "solve this problem without violence and in a peaceful, just and fair way."

The Pope then referred to the "flourishing Catholic community" in Britain.

"We know," the Pope said, "that we can assure you that the members of that community, by their dedicated participation in the life of the nation, will ever continue to be among the first to favor every undertaking for the common good."
